President Asks Another Year of Money Power

MORGENTHAU ASKS THAT F.D.R.'S RULE BE LEFT ALONE

Secretary of the Treasury Opposes Pending Bill for Establishment of Federal Monetary Authority.

MORE TIME ASKED TO TEST SYSTEM

Subcommittee Continues Work Despite Recommendation Indicating White House Opposition

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, through his secretary of the treasury, asked congress today to let him retain a free hand over monetary policies for at least another year.

Frankly "speaking for the administration," Secretary Morgenthau told a house banking subcommittee that he was not ready to accept the pending bill for establishment of a federal monetary authority with sole control over currency and gold and silver reserves. Then he added:

"I believe we need more experience and time to tell us what is the best way to handle monetary problems before we get into anything as specific or definite as is contemplated, perhaps, in this bill."

"We hope congress will give us at least the balance of this year to work on our present plan. Then we will know a little more about it."

Wants No Change.

Just as frankly, Morgenthau agreed in answer to a question by Representative Hancock, democrat, North Carolina, that the administration's "position is that the present monetary policy is more or less an experiment and it is not our recommendation that congress take any action now to change the present system."

The subcommittee, however, did not cease its work on the monetary authority bill. Chairman Goldsborough, democrat, Maryland, announced that he would continue to work on the bill, and that he would call for a vote on it at a later date.

In asking that things be "left as they are," Morgenthau presented a chart to show that since February, 1933, the world gold price has advanced 68 per cent and that of farm commodities 57 per cent.

Crisis Just Past.

"The country has just come through one of the most difficult financial crises it ever had," he continued, "and we are just beginning to see a little light."

"The record on price levels seems to show our present plan is working. I'd like to see it tried a little longer."

State Fights To Save Life It Soon Will End

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., March 1.—(AP)—Blood transfusions and heroic medical efforts saved the life of Harley Edwards today that he might be put to death as the state preferred—in the electric chair at midnight.

Doomed for the murder of his wife, he tried suicide. Near death from loss of blood, he was given drugs, stimulants and the blood of a fellow-convict to prolong his life a few hours until the state was ready to take it.

Warden Louis Kunkel announced he felt certain that Edwards would live long enough to be carried into the death chamber of the Indiana state penitentiary at 12:01 a. m.

ROOSEVELT ASKS U. S. TO GUARANTEE HOME LOAN BONDS

Message to Congress Requests Legislation To Secure Principal and Interest of Paper.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(UP)—President Roosevelt asked congress today to guarantee the principal and interest of bonds of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, a move through which it is hoped to spread millions of dollars for repairing and modernizing old homes and constructing new ones.

The original purpose of the $2,000,000,000 Home Owners' Loan Corporation program was to refinance mortgages on houses as a means of preventing foreclosures. Although it was slow in getting started, the Home Owners' Loan Corporation is making rapid progress now in that phase of its work. It has made loans of $200,000,000 on 93,500 homes. More than 90 per cent of this work was accomplished simply by exchanging the corporation's 4 per cent bonds for the mortgages existing on the properties. The interest on the bonds was guaranteed, but not the principal.

One Phase.

But this is only one phase of the intended home program. President Roosevelt wants the Home Owners' Loan Corporation to make cash loans, with mortgages as collateral.

Ickes Definitely Bans Atlantic-Gulf Canal

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, said today the Atlantic to Gulf ship canal had been definitely rejected as a public works project.

In answer to questions by newspapermen as to whether the project had been eliminated from his consideration, the administrator said:

"I think the absolute answer to that is, 'Yes.'"

President Roosevelt announced several days ago that army engineers had found the ship canal economically unfeasible due to the high cost of construction, and he regretted it could not be undertaken with public works money on a self-liquidating plan.

Persons sponsoring the canal, however, expressed hope they would be able to convince public works officials that the cost of the canal would be lower than army engineers' estimates.

Major Philip B. Fleming, of the public works engineering staff, said today his department was not considering the canal further.

F.D.R. WILL REVEAL FUTURE NRA PLAN TO NATION MONDAY

Labor Board Asks Department of Justice To Proceed Against Weirton Steel in Labor Case.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt let it be known that he will have something to say about the NRA's future on Monday just about the same time today that the national labor board asked the department of justice to do something about the Weirton Steel Company.

The president's views about the recovery unit headed by Hugh S. Johnson will be given at the meeting of code authorities called to discuss changes and the complaints that continued to rain down today.

By and large, the protests were a repetition of those already heard this week but the labor board's action was interpreted as a general move toward the solution of a major problem in connection with the recovery act and its code-enforcement.

Specifically, the charge against the steel concern at Weirton, Pa., is that it has refused to abide by section 7A of the recovery law, which gives workers the right to collective bargaining through representatives of their own choosing.

Election Prevented.

The board, headed by Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, said in a statement that the steel concern had refused to let the board conduct an election and in effect added it had given up as a bad job an attempt to persuade the steel concern to change its attitude.

The board said no other course was left to recommend action by the department of justice. Wagner said:

"Among the things the department of justice will consider is whether to start criminal proceedings against the company on a charge of code violation or whether to attempt to secure an injunction restraining the Weirton company from interfering in any election which might be held by the workers."

On the charges today was aimed at the newspapers and graphic arts code by Miss Belle Sherwin, president of the National League of Women Voters. She said they were the only codes that permitted child labor. In her opinion, she said, the insistence of the newspaper industry that it should have the privilege of employing children has been "bismarcked" by the code.

Violations Claimed.

Labor presented one witness after another with new protests, charging that many concerns had violated the spirit and letter of the collective bargaining provisions.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot had delivered the meeting yesterday with direct reference to the Weirton case and the assertion that "resisting the law is a disgrace to cheat and cheat" through open defiance by Ernest T. Weir, head of the steel concern, and others.

The board said today, however, its action was taken at a meeting on February 27 after negotiations with Weir through Walter C. Teagle and George L. Berry, board members, had failed.

The unanimous report signed by the seven members said the Weirton company had refused to furnish identification lists of its employees and had "endeavored in other ways to render

Police Body Reinstates Poole As Detective Bureau Chief

Key, in Address to Committee, Calls for Abandonment of Politics and Concerted Drive To Stamp Out Banditry.

A. Lamar Poole, first assistant chief of the Atlanta police department, was reinstated as chief of the detective bureau by unanimous vote of the police committee of council Thursday night. He vacated the post about three years ago.

The controversial question of who should designate the men to work in the bureau was left to Chief T. O. Sturdivant and Poole to work out between themselves. The committee, in its decision, said it was "to get together and select the best qualified men of the department to assign to the positions."

Action of the committee came on the heels of a demand by Mayor Bridges, in a letter to the police board, and a call on the committee and the entire department to back the chief in an effort to stamp out "rampant lawlessness" and "taxpayers' money and giving Atlanta a bad name."

Motion to reinstate Poole was made by Councilman Aubrey Milam and seconded by Councilman George B. Lytle. It immediately gave rise to a discussion as to which of the chiefs should select the men, but the committee stifled any contention by instructing the officials to get together and give the city an efficient administration.

The board said today, however, its action was taken at a meeting on February 27 after negotiations with Weir through Walter C. Teagle and George L. Berry, board members, had failed.

The unanimous report signed by the seven members said the Weirton company had refused to furnish identification lists of its employees and had "endeavored in other ways to render

CARNERA BATTERS LIGHT LOUGHRAN TO RETAIN TITLE

Giant Champion Wins 10 of 15 Rounds But Fails To Knock Out Man 86 Pounds Lighter.

By EDWARD J. NEIL. MADISON SQUARE GARDEN STADIUM, MIAMI, March 1.—(AP)—The David of the prize ring, little Tommy Loughran, failed tonight to beat pugilism's Goliath, huge Primo Carnera, but he did manage to stand the giant off for 15 rounds, though he lost the decision in a rain-swept, financially harassed heavyweight championship duel.

All the glory went to Loughran, the little man, who entered the ring for the first heavyweight championship match in Florida in 40 years and underdog at 1 to 5 in the betting, considered no better than a 1-to-2 shot to evade a knockout. Yet he stayed erect, though savagely battered through the last five rounds, while a crowd of 15,000 paying an estimated $50,000 in gate receipts, cheered and all but bowed that the veteran from Philadelphia would survive the giant's rage.

Huge Money Loss.

There was little of an artistic success to the performance, and none whatsoever from a financial standpoint. Ring records go all the way back to the dark ages of pugilism for gate receipts as small as those tonight, for a match twice postponed, handicapped for the past three days by steady rain, and soured by showers that had its small gathering turning up its coat collars an average of three times an hour.

Back in 1903, when Jim Jeffries and Jim Corbett fought for the title in San Francisco receipts were only $60,000, about the same as when Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Corbett battled in Carson City, Nev., in 1897.

It was in marked contrast, likewise, to the first heavyweight venture Madison Square Garden staged in Florida in 1929 when following the death of Tex Rickard, Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling drew a gate of $400,000 in the first battle of the Palm Beach Beach.

Carnera, 86 Pounds Heavier.

For half a dozen rounds tonight it seemed that Loughran, the fragile, 160-pound veteran who dominated the light-heavyweight division for years, might stage the greatest upset of all. Outweighed 86 pounds by the huge Italian, dwarfed in size by comparison, Loughran went as far as his strength, speed and ring craft would carry him, gallantly and full of fight. But it just so happened that 10 of the 15 rounds he was in the distance as far as any chance of winning was concerned. From then on he took a brutal beating.

Once in the fifteenth round, when bravery alone was holding the challenger, the gigantic Carnera, a blow in the chin, smashed his ponderous right full on Tommy's jaw. The Philadelphia reeled back drunk and dizzy and would certainly have crashed to the canvas had the ropes not held him up.

Decision Unanimous.

Carnera looked at him almost pitifully for a moment before resuming his clubbing assault. Tommy managed to hold. His head cleared somewhat as he danced on drunken legs.

Vanderbilt Neophytes Freed in Theater Raid

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 1.—(AP)—Twenty-four neophytes of the Vanderbilt University Owl Club, junior honorary group, arrested by city detectives last night after an uptown parade during which they staged a "rush" act at a theater, were dismissed in city court today on charges of disorderly conduct.

Alf Levine, attorney, said the theater did not wish to prosecute the case.

The Owl initiates remained in jail for three hours last night before bond was arranged.

SENATORS TO GET LIST OF SELLERS OF AIR SECURITIES

Short Sales in Key Stocks Prior to Mail Cancellation Sends Committee on Trail of "Leak."

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—A list of those who sold aviation stocks short just before the air mail contracts were annulled will be placed before the senate stock market investigating committee on Monday in answer to the demand of a republican member.

With Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, testifying on the bill to regulate the securities markets, Senator Keane, of New Jersey, said he understood the information already had been compiled and asked that it be produced. Subpoena for the documents involved was served upon Whitney before he left the stand.

This, however, was a matter of routine, for Whitney and his associates, as they complete willingness to give the committee the information, and, in fact, revealed they already had it in Washington.

Names Not Known.

Whether the list includes any government officials, none would say, and Keane himself asserted he had no knowledge or suspicion in that regard.

"I knew that the exchange sent out a questionnaire asking for the information and I thought it the duty of the committee to find out who was involved," he said. "There was a big break in those stocks before the contracts were canceled and they have no names."

Whitney said the short interest in aviation stocks increased from 4,000 shares to 44,000 shares during January. He thought scattered groups had done most of the selling, but could not recall whether any individual accounts involved huge blocks of stock.

Neither did he know he said whether any of the selling orders originated

'LAXITY' OF POLICE SCORED IN TALKS TO COUNCIL BODY

Alderman Ellis Barrett Says Citizens Will Request Talmadge's Help Unless Efficient Drive Is Made on Bandits.

2 MORE VICTIMS TAKEN FOR 'RIDES'

Man Seized and Left Bound Near Ringgold; $62,000 Demanded From Power Company Head.

Police committeemen of Atlanta were told Thursday night that unless efficient steps are taken to halt the wave of banditry which has made the streets unsafe even for motorists, leading citizens will appeal to Governor Eugene Talmadge to take the situation in hand.

At the police committee meeting, it developed that Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company, recently was the target of an extortionist who sought to frighten the power official into paying $62,000 to let alone. This development was revealed when the committee voted to allow certain police officers to receive compensation from the power company for extra time they put into the investigation of the case.

Meanwhile, two more victims of the abduction-bandits were reported. While the committeemen were debating ways and means of bringing the bandit reign of terror to an end, H. L. Todd, of 847 Augusta avenue, employee of the concession at Bobby Jones' golf course, was on a "ride" as the captive of three bandits who kidnapped him on an Atlanta street and left him tied in the woods near Ringgold, Ga.

W. L. Boone, of 1504 Beecher street, reported to police that he was taken for a "ride" by two bandits and robbed of $17 and his watch at 11 o'clock. The two bandits, according to Boone, stopped him at the corner of Beecher street and Westmont street, where they robbed him of $17 and his watch and put him out of the car.

Mr. Todd, talking to relatives over long distance telephone from Ringgold, said that he was seized by the bandits while waiting for the Hurt building for his wife and his sister, Miss Annie H. Todd, who lives at 1100 Westmont street in the building. Mr. Todd said that the bandits got into his car and drove to Ringgold, where they tied him and left him in the woods, taking the car with them.

Relatives left Atlanta Thursday night to bring him home. Although he was said to have some money on his person when last seen in Atlanta, relatives were not told whether the bandits got the money, they said.

Alderman Ellis Barrett, of the 13th ward, said he would call on the governor would be requested to use the state militia if the police force continued to be powerless to catch

Death Penalty Voted For Torture Kidnapers

LOS ANGELES, March 1.—(AP)—The death penalty was recommended by a jury of five women and seven men today for Harry Brooks and William Tanner in the first verdict of its kind under a new California law providing the gallows or life imprisonment for kidnapers who harm their victims.

The men were convicted of holding Henry Bodkin, attorney, prisoner for more than an hour, burning his hands in an effort to make him disclose the hiding place of money in his home and stealing $1,704 in jewelry and cash.

FERTILIZER RATES TATTNALL PRISON ORDERED REDUCED CONTRACT SIGNED TO CLOSE TODAY

Shippers To Save $1,000,000 Annually From 44 Railroads in State. Federal Engineers En Route to State To Select Exact Site.

The Georgia public service commission Thursday passed an order directing the 44 railroads operating within the state to decrease rates on fertilizer and fertilizer materials 27 per cent, or same reduction which two weeks ago was enjoined in the federal court.

Formal issuance of the order was delayed until today when the commission plans also to issue a statement revealing its position on the new rate schedule.

The commission Thursday also rescinded its order of February 10 directing telephone rate reductions from 15 to 25 per cent in Statesboro and Cairo, which also had been enjoined in the federal court. The order was the last involving small telephone companies to be withdrawn. All other orders affecting small telephone companies have been enjoined and later rescinded.

The fertilizer rate reduction first was ordered two weeks ago. Railroads went into court and obtained an injunction, the board following with an order rescinding the cut and setting the entire fertilizer case for rehearing Tuesday.

The hearing was held and the decision to promulgate a reduction of the same percentage was agreed upon Thursday.

Governor Talmadge has said that a 27 per cent rate reduction on fertilizer and fertilizer materials will save the shippers of the state more than $1,000,000 on their annual $4,000,000 fertilizer freight bill.

Jazz Makes Bow on Opera Stage As New American Opus Is Sung

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—The Pan Alley has been inserted into the operatic world by George Antheil. The feat was accomplished at the world premiere last night of "Helen Retires," the opera upon which John Erskine and Antheil collaborated. It was the third new American opera to reach New York in the month, the others being "Merry Mount" and "Four Saints in Three Acts." The newcomer deals with Helen of Troy, but not with one of the legends familiar to schoolboys. Erskine has taken Helen for a ride; he has made up an ironic yarn about her activities after the funeral of Menelaos. Antheil, whose music in the past has been somewhat unpredictable, and generally cacophonous, fooled everybody by flavoring his new opera with just plain jazz. Helen sings of a torch song, and Paris croons to Helen. Staging was more than modern—almost unique at times. Frederick Kiesler, who was responsible, achieved most of his effects with light. The chorus was used in a vaguely Greek manner, seated on each side of the proscenium, and dressed in flowing purple robes and curious white masks. Occasionally the principals drop into parlance, with one especially long exchange between Helen and Eteoneus

Seek Tariff Cut.

HAVANA, March 1.—(AP)—Dr. Martinez Saenz, secretary of the treasury, announced today that he would sail for Washington soon to "negotiate a loan and also plead for a reduction in the tariff on Cuban liquor."

FLOUR MANUFACTURE METHODS INTRICATE

Few people realize how intricate and scientific is the process of manufacturing a high-grade flour.

Wheat, like other cereals, has three principal parts. The outer covering, called bran, is made up of several layers, and is rich in mineral salts, but is largely cellulose or woody fiber, with little or no nutriment as a food.

The germ is the part from which the new plant develops. Here the fat in the kernel is stored. The largest part of the kernel, called the endosperm, contains the nourishment used by the plant as it begins to develop. This is mostly starch and protein or gluten. It is from this latter part of the wheat berry that white flours are made.

Some people have the idea that white flour is not as wholesome as whole-wheat or graham flour. This is a mistaken idea. Bulletin No. 126 of the United States department of agriculture has this to say on the subject:

"As shown by analysis, the patent (or white) flour ground from the hard and soft wheats studied, had a somewhat lower protein content than the graham or entire wheat flour ground from the same wheats, but according to results of digestion experiments with the different grades of flour from these wheats, the proportion of digestible protein and the available energy in the patent (or white) flour was larger than in the coarser grades."

The famous Red Band flour used this week in the Q. S. S. Cooking School is one of the most widely advertised and best-known high-grade flours made in the south today. And the unique part of it is that Red Band proves every claim made in its advertising.

POINDEXTER TAKES OATH AS GOVERNOR OF HAWAIIAN ISLES

HONOLULU, March 1.—(AP)—In the red-carpeted room where only a few years ago Hawaiian monarchs reigned, Joseph D. PoinDEXTER, one-time cowboy of the Montana range, took the oath today as the eighth governor of Hawaii. The inauguration, brief and simple, took place in the white-walled Iolani palace, the territory's capitol building. Set in a grove of royal palms, it faces busy King street and more modern building of the United States government.

The oath was administered by Chief Justice James J. Banks, of the supreme court, only 34 years after Sanford B. Dole took his oath as the first governor. There was no inaugural address. A few close friends of Mr. PoinDEXTER and of his predecessor, Lawrence M. Judd, were present, as was the new governor's daughter, Miss Helen PoinDEXTER. She will be the official hostess at Washington place, the governor's residence.

BROKEN GAS LINE KILLS TWO PHILADELPHIANS

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.—(AP) Two persons were killed, three others overcome and members of 15 families made ill early today by gas from a broken main at Seventh street and Oregon avenue.

The dead were Matti Lampinen, 53, and his wife, Helen, 45; their son, Carl, 18, was overcome, as were Katherine Laffey, 24, and James Laffey, 22, her brother. The main burst in front of the Lampinen home, and investigators said the fumes apparently followed the outside of the gas pipe leading into the cellar.

YOUR GROCER HAS THIS SUNNY WAY TO BETTER HEALTH

Check Common Constipation
with a Delicious Cereal

Food has a lot to do with how you feel and how you look. For instance, you need plenty of "bulk" with your meals to avoid the risk of common constipation.

This ailment frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet, in most cases, it can be overcome pleasantly and safely by eating a delicious cereal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" in convenient and concentrated form. Laboratory tests show the "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is safe and effective. In fact, it is much like that found in leafy vegetables.

Within the body, the fiber of ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes.

In addition, ALL-BRAN provides vitamin B and iron.

Isn't this sunny way better than taking patent medicines—so often harmful? Two tablespoonsful of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases with each meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or cook into appetizing recipes. Be sure you get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It contains much more needed "bulk" than part-bran products. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

PANAMA REJECTS CHECK FROM U. S.

First International Test of Gold Laws Looming in Case.

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—The acting fiscal agent of the republic of Panama today said he had been instructed not to accept the United States government's check for $250,000 in payment of this country's obligation under the Canal zone treaty of 1904.

John Foster Dulles, acting as the Central American government's fiscal agent in the absence of Thomas Nelson Cromwell, said he had received the check from Washington on Monday.

Dulles was unable to explain the motive behind Panama's instructions, but in financial circles it was believed Panama intended to demand payment in gold.

Cromwell is in France and Dulles recently returned from Berlin, where he represented American houses of issue in negotiating with the Reichsbank a program of interest payments on German dollar bonds.

Financial circles believed that Panama's action might be the first step in a controversy of international importance.

Under the Panama canal treaty, ratified in 1904, the United States agreed to pay Panama a lump sum of $100,000 in gold coin and to make annual payments of $250,000 in "like gold."

These payments are due each year on February 28. If the Panamanian legislation refuses to accept the check and demands gold it will be the first test of the gold clause.

Under the joint congressional resolution of June 5, 1933, all obligations, public and private, to pay in gold were outlawed.

THREAT DISCLOSED IN WYNEKOOP CASE

CRIMINAL COURTS BUILD- ING, CHICAGO, March 1.—(AP)—

With lips trembling from a storm of pent-up emotion, Catherine Wynkoop, physician-daughter of Dr. Alice Lindsey Wynkoop, charged with the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, testified in her mother's defense today that she had heard Rheta make a threat which indicated she contemplated suicide.

Avid spectators, who again today stormed the courtroom, sat tensely silent as the 25-year-old physician told for the first time the sequence of dramatic incidents after Rheta's body was found drenched in blood on the operating table in the gloomy west side home of her mother.

Visibly striving to control her emotions, Dr. Catherine told of a visit to Rheta the Sunday before the young wife's death.

She said Rheta was crying with unhappiness over neglect by her husband, Earle Wynkoop, brother of Catherine.

She said Rheta told her she would "do something Earle would be sorry for."

Dr. Catherine's appearance as a defense witness presaged the calling of her mother to the witness box. Indications had been that the mother might take the stand today and interest flared high as spectators awaited the criminal courts building in an attempt to gain entrance to the courtroom.

The aged defendant probably will take the stand tomorrow. Throughout her daughter's testimony she sat nervously toying with a water glass, her pallid face constantly lifted to watch her daughter.

Dr. Catherine, looking younger than her years and decidedly unprofessional in a navy blue silk dress, was a deathly white when she took the stand. She answered Defense Attorney Milton Smith's questions so quickly that the jury had her response before Prosecutor Dougherty was able to voice his objections. Dougherty finally cautioned her to delay her answers a bit.

Georgia Bank Case Before Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—Another controversy over the authority of national banks to pledge assets to secure deposits of states and their political subdivisions has been opened in the supreme court.

J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency, urged upon the court today the importance of granting a review asked by the receiver of the Hancock National bank, of Sparta, Ga., to set aside a decision of the fifth circuit court of appeals holding a pledge of assets made by that bank to secure deposits made by Georgia.

Pointing out there were 1,450 national banks in receivership, O'Connor emphasized that was of great importance to the government to have a ruling by the high court in the Georgia case.

Rasputin's Mesmeric Powers Cited by Killer of 'Mad Monk'

LONDON, March 1.—(UP)—The weird, hypnotic powers of Rasputin over members of the royal court of Russia under the last czar were cited in dramatic detail by Prince Yonassopoff today.

The prince, testifying in the libel suit of his wife, Princess Irina Alexandrovna, niece of Czar Nicholas, against the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Motion Picture Company, told in quick, nervous sentences how he, himself, was subjected to the mad monk's mesmeric influence.

"Rasputin promised to try to cure me of a complaint," the prince credited with slaying the unholy man from Asia testified. "I was told to lie on a couch in his study."

"Rasputin began to stroke my chest, neck and head, and make passes over my face."

Sir William Jowitt, defense attorney, interposed:

"Did you find he had a very powerful mesmeric influence over you?"

"Yes," the prince replied, his voice shaking.

"And you were unable to call out or move?"

"Travelling."

Earlier in the questioning of the prince, Sir William suggested he was so nervous when administering poison cakes to Rasputin in the death plot that he hardly knew what he was doing.

"I'm not a professional murderer," the prince shouted. "Naturally I was nervous."

The prince admitted that in parts John Barrymore's motion picture version of Rasputin's killing resembled Grand Duke Dimitri's actions rather than his own. The defense is seeking to prove that none of the actors in the film, "Rasputin and the Empress," based on the libel suit, portrayed actual characters at the Russian court. The princess claims "Nastasha" in the film is based on her own life, and that her character was defamed and libeled because in the picture "Nastasha" apparently was seduced by Rasputin.

Sir William, insisting as his defense that all the characters except the main figures in the film were fictional, further sought to disprove charges in the suit that "Nastasha" was seduced by Rasputin.

Referring to the horror on "Nastasha's" face when Rasputin in the picture says: "We're going to punish Paul, you and I . . ." Sir William declared:

"There is no ground for saying that 'Nastasha' promised to give herself to that man."

He turned to the jury and suggested that as reasonable men and women, they were unable to come to the conclusion that "Nastasha" was either seduced or the mistress of Rasputin.

"I should have asked your lordship to withdraw the case from the jury on this point, but for a fact feel that much must depend on the way in which the film character is received."

Sir William also indicated he felt that talking pictures would provide a new branch of the law, being capable, he insisted, of producing both slander and libel at the same time. He declared he doubted greatly that it was libelous to say that a woman had been raped because the usual definition of libel is something holding up a person to ridicule, hatred or contempt. To charge rape, he intimated, would be slander rather than pure libel.

He added that the way the film actors and actresses performed as well as their words had a bearing on the case.

"For instance," the attorney continued in developing his defense, "if, when Rasputin says, 'Nastasha, we are going to punish Paul,' she advances with a sinister smile, one inference can be drawn; but if she shrinks back in obvious horror, you might draw another inference altogether. Therefore, it seems to me the question of words must partly depend on the pictures with which they are accompanied."

Sir William drew laughter when he referred to reports that Miss Fanny Holtzman, Hollywood lawyer, had prevailed upon the prince to bring suit against the film company here and in numerous other countries.

"My only regret is," he said, "that I have not had the opportunity of seeing Miss Fanny Holtzman in the witness box here. I should have liked to ask her a few questions."

He then introduced the first of the defense witnesses, Sir Bernard Farre, professor of Russian literature and history. The professor testified that the character "Chegodieff," played by John Barrymore, remained to him a portrayal of Dimitri, and "Nastasha" of Golovina, another Russian court figure.

Spanish Cabinet Resigns in Body

MADRID, March 1.—(AP)—Internal political difficulties caused the resignation of the cabinet today.

President Niceto Alcalá Zamora immediately began conversations with party leaders with a view to a quick solution of the crisis.

It was indicated that he will be unable before tomorrow to find a new cabinet. He planned to hold conferences most of the night, and continue them tomorrow.

Premier Alejandro Lerroux and the members of his entire cabinet handed in their resignations after Lerroux had failed to convince the president that a partial reorganization of the cabinet would end certain internal opposition to Zamora's policies.

Among the leaders called to confer with Zamora on a new cabinet were Francisco Cambó, Catalanian Liga regionalista chieftain, and Santiago Alba, president of the cortes or parliament.

Cambó said "the only solution is a government headed by Lerroux with cabinet representation of a wider range of public opinion, eliminating men who are little known nationally."

England Proposes
New Plan on Arms

PARIS, March 1.—(UP)—The British submitted a revised disarmament plan to the French today in a fresh effort to salvage something from the deadlocked arms conference.

The revised project was offered by Anthony Eden, British statesman and lord of the seal, during a conference here with leaders of the French government, including Premier Gaston Doumergue and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou.

The French asked that they be permitted to consider the new proposals for "several days," and Eden, concurring, left by train for England. The British probably will issue a revised arms memorandum in a few days, incorporating the results of Eden's tour of the continent. He saw the Germans and Italians as well as the French in this "final" effort to bring the powers together and revive the Geneva disarmament parley.

Details of the revised plan were not disclosed, pending the anticipated British memorandum, to be issued after France has made a detailed study of the proposals.

ALABAMA BRANDS
BROTHER'S 'SUICIDE'
AS TORTURE DEATH

GADSDEN, Ala., March 1.—(AP)—Thomas P. Mayo, brother of Fred Mayo, who allegedly hanged himself in a Chicago police station cell after admitting a part in the attempted kidnapping of E. P. Adler, today issued a statement declaring he did not believe his brother committed suicide. The statement also pointed to "certain other unexplained bruises about his face and body" and said the family believed Fred Mayo was "forced into a confession" of his part in the plot.

Mayo declined to say what steps might be taken in the future. He went to Chicago last week and accompanied the body of his brother here last night.

The statement follows:
"Members of the family, friends and local physicians who viewed the body of Fred Mayo are in unison as to their expressions as to their doubts regarding his being hung with his scarf. Every indication points to the conclusion that he was hanged or tortured by a small rope cord or something the size of a window cord."

"It is not believed by the hundreds who viewed the body Wednesday night and Thursday morning that a scarf could possibly have left a mark as was evidenced on his neck."

"There were certain other unexplained bruises about his face and body and it is believed by the family that he was forced into a confession of his part in the plot."

CHICAGO OFFICER SAYS
ALABAMA'S CLAIM 'ABSURD'

CHICAGO, March 1.—(AP)—A claim that Fred Mayo, who confessed a part in the "trunk kidnapping" plot against E. P. Adler, Davenport publisher and banker, did not hang himself was branded as "absurd" today by Captain Albert Miles, in charge of the twenty-third district police.

DISPUTED TABERNACLE

JONESBORO, Ark., March 1.—(AP)—The huge wooden structure known as the Jonesboro Baptist tabernacle, scene of bitter factional church strife and of a slaying, is to be converted into a mule and horse trade barn.

The new owners of the building, sold recently at a chancery court foreclosure, announced it would be moved to another location and turned into a live stock market place.

Majority Still Patronize 'Legger,
Federal Wet Official Declares

DETROIT, March 1.—(AP)—Nearly three months after the repeal of prohibition, the administrator of the alcoholic beverage unit of the department of justice here believes the majority of the drinking public still is patronizing bootleggers.

Major W. L. Ray, who was head of the special investigation division of prohibition enforcement before repeal, said today he was convinced that "there are more stills in operation here since repeal, and their capacity is double what it used to be."

"If this liquor they distill wasn't sold and consumed, these racketeers wouldn't be manufacturing it," he said. "The fact that the alley distileries continue to operate—and on a larger scale—is evidence of a market for their products."

"The drinking public still calls up the bootlegger from whom it can get fair quality liquor at one-third the liquor store prices."

The illicit distillers, he said, having no tax to pay, are putting out a grade of alcohol comparable to the best grade of legitimate alcohol, at $8 for a five-gallon can. The tax alone on five gallons of legitimate alcohol, he pointed out, is $19.

Furthermore, he said, the alley distillers have improved their products to compete in quality with licensed distillers, "even going to the extent of putting their liquor in charred kegs and aging it."

The result, he explained, is that the bootleggers are purveying "a better grade of cheaply-priced liquor, some of it at 75 cents a quart, than the low-priced liquor in the state stores."

THE perfect proportion of leavening action as determined by scientists and cooking experts is Two-to-One; that is, two-thirds of the action takes place in the mixing and one-third takes place in the oven.

This is exactly the proportion of the leavening action you get with Rumford Baking Powder. Laboratory tests and control in the manufacture of Rumford assure your getting these results every time.

First Lady Addresses Jewish Women in N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, addressing 8,000 Jewish women Wednesday, said that recovery from the depression will be worth while "only if it carries with it, on the whole, more abundant life for everyone in this country."

She urged them to study social conditions throughout the nation, face the facts courageously and "be a little ahead of the men in our interest to see that conditions throughout this country go up instead of down."

Packed so closely that she could scarcely edge her way out, the women applauded eagerly. It was the first appearance of Mrs. Roosevelt before an exclusively Jewish group since her husband became president.

Trade, Industrial Activity Continues Rise in District

Trade and industrial activity in the sixth federal reserve district were at a substantially higher level in January than in the same month of last year, and most of the important indices showed gains over December, according to the monthly review of the Federal Reserve bank of Atlanta.

Monthly index numbers computed by the bank show that daily average sales of Atlanta department stores, adjusted for seasonal variations, stood at 139.3 for January, 1934, as compared with 112.0 for January, 1933, the index numbers being based on 100 for 1923-1925.

January sales reported by 52 department stores in the district were 31.2 per cent greater than in January of 1933, although they declined from the holiday level in December by 48.7 per cent. Sales of 99 reporting wholesale firms in eight different lines averaged 10.3 per cent greater in January than in December, and were 59.6 per cent greater than in January, 1933.

The largest gain in the district over January of last year was reported by dry goods firms, whose sales were more than double those a year ago. Bank debits to individual accounts increased slightly over the month and were 15.9 per cent greater than for January, 1933.

Building permits issued during January at 20 reporting cities increased 64.2 per cent over December, and were more than three times as large as in January of last year.

Construction contracts awarded in the district during January increased 42.6 per cent over the month before, and were more than twice as large as in January, 1933. Residential contracts increased 80 per cent from December to January, and were 241.7 per cent greater than a year ago, and other contracts increased 40.5 per cent in January, 1934, by 111.6 per cent, the review showed.

Daily average demand deposits of all member banks were higher for January than for any other month since March, 1932. Although the volume of federal reserve bank credit outstanding at the sixth district bank declined further between January 10 and February 14, it was somewhat greater than a year ago, because of larger holdings of United States government securities, the bank reported.

Loans by weekly reporting member banks declined somewhat, but holdings of government securities increased by $14,500,000, and loans and investments of these banks were $29,800,000 greater on February 14 than at the same time last year.

Estimates of the citrus fruit production in Florida from the bloom of 1933 are somewhat below those of the previous crop season, but the orange crop is larger than that from the 1931 bloom, the bank reported. The February estimate indicated an orange crop of 15,000,000 boxes, compared with 13,900,000 last season and a crop of 9,800,000 boxes of grapefruit, compared with 11,800,000 boxes during the previous season.

Strawberry acreage increased this year over last in Louisiana and was the same in Georgia, though showing declines in other states. Georgia Irish potato growers increased "intentions to plant" from 800 acres in 1933 to 1,400 in 1934, and other states also reported increases. Estimates of the United States department of agriculture indicate more cattle, but fewer horses, mules, sheep and hogs on the farms of the district, although the total live of farm animals increased 23.1 per cent over the year.

Department stores of the district, in addition to reporting increased sales, reported that stocks were larger by 19.2 per cent and that the collection ratio was higher, as compared with January, 1933.

Dun & Bradstreet statistics indicated that during January there were 51 business failures in the district, or 17 per cent more than in December, compared with 176 in January, 1933. Liabilities for January, 1934, amounted to $759,559, compared with $458,903 in December, and with $372,172 for January a year ago. Business failures over the nation likewise decreased from January of 1933.

Atlanta's building permits during January showed an increase of 1,155.1 per cent in value over the same month of 1933, although fewer in number. Permits over the district increased 22.1 per cent in value over January, 1933.

Total consumption of cotton by American mills increased by 45.8 per cent from December to January, after declining each month except one (October) from an all-time high level in June through December. January consumption was 8.1 per cent greater than in that month a year ago. In the cotton states, which consumed 80 per cent of the country's total, January consumption increased 48.8 per cent over December and was 2.4 per cent greater than a year earlier.

The national summary shows that volume of initial production increased by more than the usual seasonal amount in January and the early part of February. The general level of wholesale commodity prices, after showing relatively little change during the last five months of 1933, advanced considerably after the turn of the year.

The district survey showed that while pig iron production in Alabama declined from the high December level, it was five times as large as production of January, 1933. Coal production increased over the month and over January last year in both Alabama and Tennessee.

MEASURES TO AID TRAFFIC APPROVED

As flagrant violations of Atlanta traffic laws continued Thursday, the ordinance committee approved ordinances designed to tighten the law and to aid enforcement.

A double-barreled ordinance aimed at drivers under the influence of intoxicants, and speeders was sanctioned by the committee, and the police committee of council gave formal approval to a triplicate copy system to assist officers in enforcing traffic regulations. The three-copy system will allow one copy to go to the violator, another to the police department and a third will remain in copy books. Each driver will be checked and if copies are destroyed, officers will be called to explain why.

The ordinance sponsored by Councilman John A. White, provides $100 fines, 30 days in the stockade and revocation of the right to drive from 30 to 90 days for those driving under the influence of liquor.

Speeders would get $50 fines, or 10 days in the stockade and the same suspension of the right to drive, under the ordinance.

When the ordinance was announced he would draft the ordinance, he pointed to the increase in accident insurance rates for Atlanta, its high place among other cities of Atlanta's size in the accident column, and asserted that records of the city "can be made safe for careful drivers and pedestrians alike within 30 days from the passage of the ordinance."

In addition, the ordinance committee advised a proposal to increase the membership of the police fire and park committees of council to 13 members. The police and parks have five members and the fire seven. Councilman Howard C. McCutcheon is author of the measure.

A proposal to designate representatives of the municipality who shall attend functions as city representatives was advised. Councilman Joseph E. Berman was author of the measure, which was designed to prevent Luke S. Arnold, Mayor James L. Kuykendall's executive secretary, from representing the mayor.

Officials of the Atlanta Motor Club and the police department sought the co-operation of all drivers in making the streets safe for pedestrians and motorists.

A cure for the many accidents which occur daily in Atlanta would be a law licensing all drivers in the opinion of hundreds of Atlantans who have talked with officials of the motor club, which is sponsoring the safety campaign.

As many of the traffic rule violators are residents of other Georgia cities, Goodie K. Kuykendall, president of the Atlanta Motor Club, and the club's secretary, Jack Strauss, have issued an appeal for these autoists to drive carefully in the city and to learn the traffic ordinances.

One man reported to the motor club Thursday that in a few hours he saw 15 cars make complete turns in the middle of the block, endangering the occupants of the automobile and the lives of other motorists also.

Forty-five violations of the red-amber-green light ordinance were reported during the day—all observed by citizens who are aiding in the campaign by taking the license tag numbers of cars and reporting the violations to the motor club. The club will write letters to the offenders pointing out the violation. Thirty-seven failures to stop at boulevard signs and illegal turns were also reported by the club Thursday.

"Every violation puts some one's life in great danger," was the expression of one man. Utter disregard of rules and carelessness in driving are the two main reasons for 11 lives being lost in Atlanta in the last two months and countless persons being injured, with great loss in property damage to automobiles.

R. R. Bruns, 25, of 327 Moreland avenue, N. E., convicted of speeding at a rate of 50 miles an hour on February 23, was given a suspended sentence of $25 or 30 days in the city stockade by Recorder John L. Cone Thursday. The sentence was suspended with the proviso that Bruns would not drive his car or any car for 90 days.

Board Here Orders End Of Birmingham Strike

After arbitrating the first case of its kind on record here, the Atlanta regional board Thursday ordered immediate cessation of the Birmingham laundry strike pending final action on the case, which is expected next week. The strike affected about 2,000 laundry employees.

At a hearing before the board Thursday, it was brought out that the strike, which was started February 10, was caused by alleged refusal of laundry operators to sign an agreement calling for an increase in the minimum wage from 14 to 16 2-3 cents an hour.

In order that the strike be ended at once, the labor board decreed that the laundry operators should not show discrimination against any of the strikers.

Uncle Sam Not Expected To Seek Cut in Big Salaries.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The men who have been getting big fat salaries from corporations haven't had a kind word said for them lately by any of the governmental agencies hereabouts. In fact, the publicity given to the details of these salaries has all been in the direction of disapproval.

But now it has been discovered that Uncle Sam is deeply interested in seeing to it that big salaries are not reduced. In fact, it would be helpful, so it appears, for some of these salaries to be higher. For Uncle Sam would then get more money out of them.

No less an authority than a subcommittee of the house ways and means committee has made known its view that high salaries ought not to be reduced because tax revenue would actually be lost.

Looking over the new tax rates and the schedule in the present law, Uncle Sam gets about $30,000 out of every corporation officer who earns $100,000 a year. When the salary gets up to $200,000, the government gets more than 40 per cent, namely about $80,000. If a salary reaches $1,000,000, which is a rare case, the government gets $500,000 out of it.

The reasoning of the congressional committee is that a surtax on an individual income gives the federal government more money than if the same amount is spread among a lot of small taxpayers, each of whom pays a small fraction. In other words, the theory of the income tax is that it is to the interest of the government to see high salaries, and surtaxes paid because the present theory of taxation is to increase the tax rates materially on higher incomes.

As long as the income tax is the principal source of tax revenues, the treasury will benefit from a system of concentrated wealth or earning power, especially since in recent years congress has followed the so-called rich policy rather than to set up any general sales tax.

What has become rather significant is that the experts who study ways and means of getting tax revenue plainly confess that there has to be a profit-system. For Uncle Sam has gone into partnership with the productive capacity or earning power of individuals as well as companies. In a nutshell, the government splits on a 30-70 basis on all $100,000 incomes and, while the proportion may be open to debate, depending on what amounts are desired to collect, there can be no doubt that the treasury's fortunes are dependent upon a continuance of a system of rewards for individual earning power.

MOVIE STARS' RECIPES

I have compiled the favorite recipes of 50 of the leading movie stars, among which are Ramon Navarro, John Gilbert, John Barrymore, George Arliss, Mae West, and others. These recipes are novel and different, and will be a great help to homemakers in preparing a variety of meals. Anyone wishing a complete booklet of the entire 50 recipes may obtain same by sending 15 cents in stamps or money to Sally Saver, care The Constitution.

This week I have something different for you. You know, the children like different foods, your husband likes something different, so here is the idea:

Sunday, Roast Beef; Monday, Ha-ash; Tuesday, . . .

Countless hundreds of thousands of American homes in which Monday's hash has followed Sunday's roast with monotonous regularity for generations are experiencing new delights by the use of left-over meats in chop suey or chow mein.

The time was when chop suey or chop suey were luxuries indulged in only on the occasion of a rare visit to some Chinese restaurant. Now, with the necessary ingredients for either delectable dish available in cans, properly blended according to ancient Chinese recipes and packed in a spotless American plant, the savory dishes may be prepared in one's kitchen within 10 minutes, the result is something of which the most gifted Chinese chef would be proud.

Economical, easy of preparation and offering such a tasty variation in menu, whether for the family meal, the bridge luncheon or the late "pick-up" supper, it is small wonder that chop suey and chow mein have so far outdistanced other old world vintages in popularity in American homes.

The essentials of chop suey or chow mein are, of course, the vegetables and the zesty seasoning which LaChoy imports from China. The secret of success in making either dish is in the blending of the vegetables—soy bean sprouts, water chestnuts, bamboo shoots, sweet peppers and mushrooms—which thanks to modern science are now combined in a single can. A dash of soy sauce, another of brown sauce, the addition of left-over meat, celery and onions— presto!—a dish appealing to every member of the family and the recipes on the package labels are so simple that failure is almost impossible. Here is a recipe for fine-cut chop suey or chow mein:

(Materials for four medium portions.)

Three tablespoons vegetable or animal fat, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup water, 1-2 cup of fine-cut onions (if desired), 1 cup of diced raw pork, veal, fowl or sea food, 1-1/2 cups of celery, cut into small pieces, 1 can LaChoy bean sprouts, drained.

Thickening.

Three level tablespoons corn starch, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon LaChoy brown sauce or sugar, 2 tablespoons LaChoy soy sauce when using brown sauce. When sugar is used instead of brown sauce use 3 tablespoons soy sauce.

Method of Cooking.

1. Heat fat in covered saucepan or skillet over brisk fire; add salt, meat and onions, stir constantly and cook rapidly until meat is well seared. (Four minutes.)

2. Add celery and water. Cover and boil until celery is done. (Four minutes.)

3. Place thickening ingredients in bowl and mix well.

4. Add LaChoy bean sprouts, drained, to contents of skillet; mix while heating thoroughly. Take two tablespoons of liquid from cooking mixture and stir into thickening until smooth. Add to chop suey, stirring constantly to prevent burning. Remove from fire and serve piping hot.

Method of Serving.

To serve chop suey, use a can of LaChoy cooked rice or your own rice, which should be steamed until light and fluffy.

To serve chow mein, use a can of LaChoy chow mein noodles. Empty into pan and warm slightly. Mold on a platter or individual plates and cover with the chop suey.

Individual dishes may be garnished with lettuce and decorated with shredded green onions, sliced boiled egg or slender strips of fried beaten egg, and whole or chopped onions. Season to taste with LaChoy soy sauce.

Happy indeed the housewife who has discovered the thrills which Chinese foods hold for jaded appetites. For her the age-old secrets of the artistry which combine to make savory chop suey, chow mein, egg foo young and other Chinese dishes so appealing to occidental tastes, are now an open book.

And all the indispensable Chinese vegetables and sauces— toothsome bean sprouts, succulent young bamboo shoots, water chestnuts, noodles, soy bean sauce and brown sauce, all imported—are to be found in tins or bottles on the shelves of her favorite grocer. Thus her quest for "something different" ends in fascinating vintages that not only intrigue the whole family but are highly nutritious as well.

Science has made it unnecessary for a housewife to spend tiresome hours peeling, paring and cutting. In 10 minutes she now prepares in her own kitchen delicacies rivaling in piquancy and flavor the masterpieces of a Chinese chef. And, the whole family delights in the assurance that every ingredient, imported from China, was packed by Americans in a scrupulously clean plant.

No other dish for a family meal or variation from the ordinary bridge-luncheon or late supper menu can be prepared at such small cost of effort, time and money. A complete assortment for making chop suey or chow mein at home can be purchased for a comparatively trifling sum and following the simple recipes on the package labels even the veriest novice in the kitchen may serve a dish fit for a mandarin.

Here is an authentic recipe for making sub kum (meaning 10 different ingredients) chop suey or chow mein:

(Materials for four medium portions.)

Three tablespoons vegetable or animal fat, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup water, 1-2 cup of fine-cut onions (if desired), 1 cup of diced raw pork, veal, fowl or sea food, 1-1/2 cups of celery, cut into small pieces, 1 can LaChoy vegetables, drained.

Thickening.

Three level tablespoons corn starch, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon LaChoy brown sauce or sugar, 2 tablespoons LaChoy soy sauce when using brown sauce. When sugar is used instead of brown sauce use 3 tablespoons soy sauce.

Method of Cooking.

1. Heat fat in covered saucepan or skillet over brisk fire; add salt, meat and onions, stir constantly and cook rapidly until meat is well seared. (Four minutes.)

2. Add celery and water. Cover and boil until celery is done. (Four minutes.)

3. Place thickening ingredients in bowl and mix well.

4. Add LaChoy vegetables, drained, to contents of skillet; mix while heating thoroughly. Take two tablespoons of liquid from cooking mixture and stir into thickening until smooth. Add to chop suey, stirring constantly to prevent burning. Remove from fire and serve piping hot.

Method of Serving.

To serve chop suey, use a can of LaChoy cooked rice or your own rice, which should be steamed until light and fluffy.

To serve chow mein, use a can of LaChoy chow mein noodles. Empty into pan and warm slightly. Mold on a platter or individual plates and cover with the chop suey.

Individual dishes may be garnished with lettuce and decorated with shredded green onions, sliced boiled egg or slender strips of fried beaten egg, and whole or chopped onions. Season to taste with LaChoy soy sauce.

Today's Session Ends Q. S. S. Cooking School

how easy it is to cook well and economically.

In the center of the stage is the Hot Point range. General Electric dish washer and the 1934 model Crosley servomotor electric refrigerator. This is the first time that an all-electric kitchen has been used in Atlanta for a cooking school, and after each session Miss Decker receives many compliments on it.

On the left of the stage there is another Crosley electric refrigerator, and Hoosier kitchen cabinet, on the right a Hot Point range and still another of the larger makes of the Crosley refrigerator used by Miss Decker in her demonstrations and for storage purposes.

A feature of Thursday's program was the attendance of the board of directors of the Quality Service Stores, in a body, and after Miss Decker's lecture they were called on the stage and introduced to the audience. They received a splendid hand. It is through their splendid co-operation with The Atlanta Constitution that this cooking school has been made possible to the Atlanta women, and from all indications and comments it is one that will long be remembered by the housewives of this community.

Here are the menus used by Miss Decker at Thursday's school:

1 Missing, 2 Injured
In Speed Boat Blast

NEW SMYRNA, Fla., March 1.—(AP)—One woman was missing and two were seriously injured as a result of an explosion of gas tanks of a 75-foot speed cruiser on the Indian river two miles south of here tonight.

Mrs. M. P. Hutto was missing. It was said she was trapped in the cabin when flames burst forth. Mrs. Dorothy Crisp and Mrs. Mary Hutto Britton, daughter of the missing woman, were injured.

Of a party of 12 on the boat, several were taken to a local hospital suffering from shock and slight burns. All were local people except the owner of the boat, Winton Smith, Raleigh, N. C., and the cook and maid.

Residents living along the riverfront, who heard the explosion, said the boat burst into flames immediately afterward. Mrs. Britton was said to have rushed back for her mother after the ship was on fire but was forced back by the flames.

He Overlooked
HEINZ
BEANS!

Napoleon said, "An army marches on its stomach." He had the right idea. But he might have done better to feed his armies baked beans.

Oven-baked beans had an aroma that welcomed our forefathers hiking home from Indian-fighting. Oven-baked beans were meaty and savory and sweet, and it was comforting to munch them.

Well now, Heinz has perpetuated the ancestral practice of oven-baking beans. Heinz secures only "choice hand-picked" beans, sorts from these the most perfect ones, soaks them long, bakes them slow in hot dry ovens, and cooks into them rich savory sauces.

So today you can enjoy this food at its best. But please look for the name—

Hostess Today for Q S S Cooking School

Famed Monte Carlo Russe Pleases Large Audience Here

A brilliant climax came for the 1933-34 season of the All-Star Concert Series, sponsored by the Atlanta Philharmonic Society, in their last presentation last evening in the city auditorium, the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe. The largest of any of the concert audiences of the season enthusiastically greeted this aggregation of dancers of exceeding grace and skill, the auditorium being filled to capacity except for the few seats at the extreme right and left of the stage.
The Monte Carlo Ballet Russe offered an evening of entertainment that was like soothing refreshment to the artistic nature. They are a large company of dancers, all of whom are notably youthful, but the artistic maturity of the art that they unfolded in rhythmic movements was nothing short of astounding. There was not a single member of the ballet that did not appear to be a master of the art of choreography, and as an ensemble they seemed to perfectly embody all the arts, beauty, poetry, drama, painting, music, rhythm and the dance. There is a certain fascination to any dance recital, and a certain enchantment in witnessing a dancer express his art in motion, but the enrapturing of the all-encompassing art by such a professionally artistic company as the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe was a joy to the soul. And I believe that most of the spectators of their sensational and entrancing pantomimes felt the same. Their performances are truly masterpieces of the dance.
The first ballet of the evening was "Les Sylphides," an ethereal and beautiful interpretation of many of the compositions of Chopin. The ballet danced a "Nocturne" with all the feeling for grace and beauty in motion imaginable. One of the finest numbers was the "Valse," danced by Alexandra Danilova and Roman Jasinski, sweeping the audience with them in a delicious wave of rhythmic vitality. The closing number of this ballet, to the music of the "Valse Brillante in E flat," mastered the entire hall for a thrilling and breath-taking series of spectacular dance effects.
The second ballet, "Scouts di Ballet," (The School of Ballet), was a humorous pantomime play cleverly enacted in dance idioms, evoking many a laugh from the audience. Allegorically, as the dancing professor, made a comical professor, but not so comical as Riddolo, (Vania Postel), his friend, and fellow-conspirator against the impresario. Along with the comic antics, however, came some of the finest dancing of the evening, by the "pupils of the school."
The first ballet, "Le Beau Danube" ("The Beautiful Danube"), bringing an exceedingly enjoyable evening to a thrilling climax in an exhibition of skill in the art of the dance that excited the wonder and admiration of the vast audience which showed appreciation at the close with a storm of applause.
The orchestra that the company brings with them is a valuable asset to their fine performances, furnishing artistic accompaniments under the excellent direction of Antal Dorati. Enormous credit is due Rene Blum, artistic director of the company, and Leonide Massine, the maître de ballet.

To the Citizens of FULTON COUNTY

The greatest problems of Fulton County with its tremendous population are: Efficient, Economical County Government—Good Roads and Good Schools—and above all the Health Protection of our people.

Without proper health—no community can long exist or prosper. At least one member of the Board should be one whose training and experience qualifies him to safeguard the health of the entire community. (The present County Board of Health needs the support of the County Commissioners to carry out these principles.) If elected, I shall endeavor to accomplish this . . . and give the people a business-like administration. I will appreciate your vote toward this vital problem for County Commissioner.

Beck Scholarship Applications
Will Be Received Until April 15

The trustees of the Beck Foundation, founded several years ago in the will of the late Lewis H. Beck, long president of the Beck & Gregg Hardware Co., of Atlanta, Thursday announced that applications for the first scholarship to be awarded by the foundation will be received between now and April 15 and immediately thereafter a selection will be made.

Under the terms of the foundation regulations, only students at institutions which have a Phi Beta Kappa chapter are eligible to apply. These institutions in Georgia are the University of Georgia, Emory University and Agnes Scott College.

The applicant awarded the scholarship will be permitted to attend a recognized leading institution for two years and for a third year if he or she convinces the board that it will be to the best advantage for a third year of study.

List of Qualifications.

Selections will be made after the following is considered: Literary and scholastic ability and attainments; qualities of manhood or womanhood; truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy, kindness, unselfishness and fellowship; exhibition of moral force of character and of instincts to lead and to take an interest in his schoolmates and physical vigor, as shown by interest in sports or in other ways.

Those filing applications must be between 19 and 25 years of age, unmarried and have been a citizen of Georgia with at least five years domicile. They also must already have graduated within a two-year period immediately preceding the date of application or have reasonable expect-tations of graduation within the six months' period immediately following the date of application at some Georgia institution of learning whose standards are approved and recognized both by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and the Association of American Universities where there exists the Phi Beta Kappa chapter.

The applicant also must be nominated by a committee of five members of the faculty of his institution and not more than two applicants can be made by any institution.

The committee to award the scholarship will be composed of the supervising trustees, Preston S. Arkwright, and the following:

The president of the Association of Georgia Colleges or his nominee from the organization; the president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs or her nominee from that organization; the chief justice of the supreme court of Georgia or his nominee from that court or the court of appeals, of a member of the Georgia Bar Association, and, provided they have completed their college work, a Georgia resident Rhodes scholar, or a Georgia resident member of the Phi Beta Kappa, or a Georgia resident Beck scholar, this member to be designated by the foundation board's supervising member.

$25,000 Fund for Purpose.

In his will, Mr. Beck set aside a fund of $25,000, the interest on which will pay the scholarship. The board cannot expend more than $2,000 annually and it is expected that the scholarship will be worth $1,250 a year. Applicants are requested to prepare to supplement the scholarship with $500 annually of their own funds.

In setting up the foundation, Mr. Beck in his will named Mr. Arkwright, former Governor Hugh M. Dorsey, Palmer Smith and Joseph H. McCord as foundation trustees. Four more were to be named by the trustees of Emory University who selected Howard Candler, W. S. Thompson, H. M. McCord Jr. and T. K. Glenn. The eight members then chose the ninth, Mrs. Sam Inman. Mr. Candler is chairman of the board of trustees. The supervising members were to be chosen in alphabetical order, Mr. Arkwright being the first. Mr. Beck, who was one of the founders of the hardware company, obtained the first commercial charter in Georgia and one of the first in the south.

In addition to setting up the scholarship fund he provided funds for Emory University which are administered by a board, headed by former Governor Dorsey; funds for Georgia Tech, administered by a board headed by Lee Ashcraft; for education of girls at Wesleyan College, administered by a board headed by General Walter Harris, of Macon, and also made bequests to the Tallulah Falls school and the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children.

COACH LINE PURCHASE
IS ANNOUNCED HERE*New System Will Feature
Old South Lines and Customs.

Purchase of the operation of the Queen City coach lines between Charlotte and Atlanta and between Atlanta and Columbia, and the Hood Coach Lines between Atlanta, Columbus and Montgomery, by the Old South Lines, Inc., of Charlotte, was announced Thursday by Paul R. Sheahan, vice president and general manager of Old South Lines, who was in Atlanta completing arrangements for taking over the routes.

Innovations in bus travel to be inaugurated immediately include complete refitting of the walls of the buses owned by the two companies taken over, the addition of radios, free pillows, porter service and company-owned rest stops on all lines. Free magazines and newspapers, free refreshments at certain rest stops on through lines, and other novelties will feature the new service, Sheahan announced.

The new system will feature the Old South and its customs, carrying out the idea for bus passengers from the north and west through the installation of a negro quartet, dressed in old-fashioned clothes, to meet all through buses between Atlanta and Charlotte and between Atlanta and Montgomery, Sheahan said. At company-owned rest stops the Old South idea will be carried out through log cabin taverns with servants in colonial costumes.

The new system will operate buses straight through from Charlotte to Montgomery without change, making the longest through bus trip in the south, eliminating stopovers, and changing of baggage. Old South lines form the only major link in bus service between New York, Washington and New Orleans, it was said. J. L. Gilmer, of Winston-Salem, N. C., is president of the company.

5 Ex-Commissioners Are Denied Rehearing

The supreme court Thursday ended the last hope of five members of the suspended public service commission of being restored to their posts before the next meeting of the general assembly when it denied to rehear outster proceedings brought by four of the five members against those appointed by Governor Eugene Talmadge to their posts.

The action was on the cases filed by J. A. Perry, of Atlanta; Albert Woodruff, of Decatur; Walter R. McDonald, of Augusta, and Julie W. Fulton, of Montezuma. Perry T. Knight, of Valdosta, never took legal action in an attempt to regain his place on the commission.

Under the law the five commissioners were suspended by the governor until the next meeting of the legislature, which under the statutes must review the governor's action.

Hurt Building Cash
Is Held Up by Court

Distribution among Hurt building bondholders of $700,000 cash in the hands of the building receivers will not be allowed at the present time under a decision rendered by Judge M. E. Pomeroy in Fulton superior court Thursday. In denying a petition for distribution, filed by the bondholders, the court reserved the right to order such distribution at another time in its discretion and directed the receivers to procure full information relative to investments of cash now in hand and present the same with recommendations at an early date. Data relative to insurance also was asked for by the court.

Another point which has been in dispute for several months was decided Thursday when Judge Pomeroy, by sustaining a demurrer to the defense of usury, interposed in the foreclosure proceedings against the building. The court's action will leave the way clear for foreclosure and sale of the property.

Not the bottom leaves, because those are inferior in quality—they grow close to the ground and are tough, coarse and always sandy. The center leaves are the mildest leaves,

These center leaves are cut into long, even strands and are fully packed into each and every Lucky—giving you a cigarette that is always round, firm, completely filled—no loose ends. ## TORNADO RELIEF MEETING CALLED

Means of Raising Funds for Distressed To Be Discussed Today.

Leaders of every walk of life Thursday were summoned by Mayor James L. Key to meet at 11 o'clock this morning at the city council chamber to devise means of raising funds for Georgia tornado victims.

The mayor called the meeting following a conference with General J. H. Reeves, general chairman of the Atlanta chapter, Red Cross, and several other Red Cross officials, at which the extent of the suffering was related. The state organization is attempting to raise about $35,000 and Atlanta will be asked for $15,000.

At the same time, Governor Eugene Talmadge issued a proclamation designating the Red Cross as the official relief agency in the crisis and calling on citizens of the state to support the drive generously.

The storm swept through portions of Carroll, Henry, Troup, Fayette and

Cross-Cut Saws Utilized To Banish Snowdrifts

BARRE, Vt., March 1.—(AP)—There are more ways than one to buck a snowdrift and folks of Barre attest to that fact. When hard crust on top of drifts which blocked highways defied the efforts of tractors and plows, a group of ingenious Vermonters took to cutting the drifts up with cross-cut saws. The well-cut drifts were then lifted out of the road.

Lumpkin counties, almost destroying Bowden, according to reports.

Charlie Carr, disaster representative of the national organization, was in Atlanta Thursday assisting Stone J. Crane, state disaster representative, in rehabilitation work in the affected area.

Carr said that out of a total of 224 homes in Bowden, 161 were damaged; 45 of these probably will have to be rebuilt, and 18 others were destroyed totally. Out of 45 of the 224 homes were undamaged.

Key received a telegram from Mayor Paul W. Hurt of Bowden, urging Atlanta to aid in the collection of funds. He said there is "urgent need of substantial funds."

The Red Cross already is in the field, but it must have additional monies to meet the emergencies in the stricken sections, it was said.

Representatives pointed out that for the past 10 years, the national Red Cross has expended more than $900,000 a year in disaster relief work in America.

Carroll county damage was estimated at between $350,000 and $400,000 in messages from Cecil Bean, Carroll county legislative representative. He asserted he was quoting estimates made by the Red Cross.

"Atlanta cannot fail to do its full duty to humanity in this crisis," Key said in calling the meeting today. "Our sister cities are the victims of disasters beyond their control. We must respond from the big heart of Atlanta, which is always open to the call of humanity."

People who are wise in regard to dental health thoroughly enjoy the invigorating, salty, business-like taste of Pebecco. Because they know that Pebecco is the only tooth paste using Potassium Chlorate as a base, the vital ingredient for tooth, mouth, and gum health.

Pebecco's effectiveness has been clearly demonstrated in recent nation-wide Twin

Try Pebecco. You'll like its fresh tang because you know that refreshing taste means business... the business of caring for your teeth correctly.

In Georgia's Fields and Streams

By H. A. CARTER

Embarking on another research problem when I swore two months ago not to take on another is undoubtedly bad practice. But this thing is so intensely interesting and potentially valuable as a scientific tool that I just couldn't resist it.

The problem is to select a light source that will distort, so to speak, the relationships of certain pigments in the skins of mammals. There is a heavy charge of yellow pigment, for example, in the fur of the white-footed mouse that varies in intensity from one subspecies to another, although the net result of the blending of two or more pigments produces a color that is altogether identical so far as the eye is concerned.

If you examine an analysis of the spectrum from one of the mercury vapor lamps, you will find that there is a very definite band of yellow in addition to the blue, although the latter color is the one most decidedly evident to the eye. The fur of the field mouse, or the muskrat, or any one of hundreds of brown and grey animals, shows the yellow most plainly under the light of the mercury vapor lamp.

Now the problem is to blend light from as many light sources as possible or necessary to produce a mixture of spectrum colors—not necessarily all of them—to bring out in some definite manner the relative values of pigments. How shall we accomplish this? I have no idea, and after I have collaborated with some of the illumination engineers I shall not have a much clearer notion. I just know that so many Angstrom means such and such wave length. Mixing the light is up to them. My job is to judge the value of the mixture as it relates to systematic work in mammals.

The National Museum, through the kindness of Alexander Wetmore, executive secretary, and Dr. Leach Stejneger, the head curator, and Dr. Gerritt S. Miller Jr., of the division of mammals, is sending me 18 specimens of tawny appearance, which will serve as the basis for this work. They are also helpful in sending me a bibliography of the work that has been done on this line. One title contained in this list, and that deals with the use of the Ives tint photometer for the same purpose. It must be a good field. Excuse me while I find out what a photometer is.

Hopkins Takes Over North Dakota Relief

BISMARCK, N. D., March 1.—(AP)—Political tribute, claimed to have been exacted from relief employees in North Dakota, resulted in the national government taking control of the state relief administration today.

This action by Harry L. Hopkins, federal administrator at Washington, was promptly followed by Senator Nye's demand that any officials found guilty of such wrongdoing, be prosecuted.

Governor William Langer, keeping a speaking engagement in another part of the state, could not be reached immediately regarding Hopkins' charges that "information indicates political contributions were collected from employees of the relief administration in North Dakota."

"It is apparent these contributions were used for your political purposes," the federal administrator added.

"Let the ax fall where it will," Nye asserted. "I think it should involve indictment and trial of one rewarded by election to so high an office as that of governor of the state I love and happily call home."

It is understood that F. W. Cooper, now with the West End branch of First National bank, will be chosen cashier, and that Miss Ruth Martin, formerly employed by the College Park bank, will be engaged as a teller. The new organization will have a capital stock of $50,000, with $12,500 surplus, and will operate as a state bank under the Federal Guarantee Deposit Corporation.

Prices Reduced On All Ford V-8 Models

DETROIT, March 1.—Ford Motor Company officials have announced reductions on all V-8 passenger cars, trucks and commercial cars in most sections of the country, effective today. The reductions vary by districts, the greatest price cut being about $19 a car.

Owing to variations in transportation rates, each sales district will announce its own new prices. Officials said, however, the reduction would not be made effective in some Pacific coast districts.

Soviet, Japs Exchange Airplane Protests

TOKYO, March 1.—(AP)—Identical protests of airplane flights in forbidden territory, made in Moscow and Tokyo Wednesday, started a new Russo-Japanese controversy.

The Japanese government charged that Soviet planes had flown over Korea and Manchuria, and demanded guarantees that such flights would cease.

At the same time, the Russians protested to the foreign office, through Japanese Ambassador Ota in Moscow, that Japanese planes had been sighted in Soviet territory.

A government spokesman said the incident should be regarded as serious, but asserted that "the world need not be afraid that Russia and Japan are on the verge of war."

BANK AT EAST POINT WILL OPEN ON APRIL 2

The Bank of Fulton County will open at East Point on April 2, it was announced yesterday. According to George F. Longino, who will probably be elected president of the new organization, the opening of a bank in this section of the county evidences a return of prosperity to that district, inasmuch as there has been no bank in East Point, College Park or Hapeville for several years, whereas before the depression three banks were doing good business for the locality.

It is understood that F. W. Cooper, now with the West End branch of First National bank, will be chosen cashier, and that Miss Ruth Martin, formerly employed by the College Park bank, will be engaged as a teller. The new organization will have a capital stock of $50,000, with $12,500 surplus, and will operate as a state bank under the Federal Guarantee Deposit Corporation.

MEETING ON STRIKE SET FOR MONDAY

Both Sides at Rome To Lay Case Before Labor Board.

Representatives of opposing factions in the strike at the Southern Co-operative Foundry in Rome, Ga., agreed Thursday to submit the controversy to the Atlanta regional labor board, and A. Stevens Nance, a member of the board, advised the employees to withdraw pickets.

Nance investigated the strike conditions at the request of Governor Talmadge following requests for troops because of what officers described as "riotous atmosphere." The labor board set 2 p. m. Monday, March 5, as the time for the hearing.

Representatives of the company and the employees said an agreement had been reached whereby all activity would cease until the labor board had heard both sides. It also was agreed, Nance said, that the opponents would be permitted to present their case to sit as a body of arbitration.

Unless both sides agree to this action, the board said as a fact-finding body, it will proceed to hear the case. It is the contention of the strikers that the company was left with an unfair wage differential following settlement of a general strike of all Rome foundries.

The strikers had set up tents outside the foundry and prevented shipment of repair parts or other stock from the foundry.

An attempt to send out parcel post packages Monday caused a clash between pickets and employees. Disorders following this caused an appeal to be made to the governor for troops. The militia was not ordered out but the governor sent personnel to the scene, which resulted in the agreement to place the matter before the labor board.

HART FARMERS PUSH REFORESTATION WORK

ATHENS, Ga., March 1.—(AP)—To save present valuable soils, the farmers of Hart county are practicing reforestation extensively, it is announced by the agricultural extension service of the University of Georgia.

LEADERS AT MOULTRIE HAIL BETTER BUSINESS

MOULTRIE, Ga., March 1.—With Alex Hall as president, H. McDowell and Homer G. Ray as vice presidents, and with more than a score of business and professional men composing its board of directors, the Chamber of Commerce entered its 26th year. A working fund large enough to carry out the program of the chamber was raised at the annual meeting.

H. McDowell, retiring president, said Moultrie has not been standing still during the depression, having shown an increase in population of more than 2,000 during the past three years. Building did not stop in 1933, more than 100 new homes being constructed here during the year, he declared. He also called attention to the fact two large tobacco warehouses are to be built here before the opening of the next selling season.

It was the consensus of opinion among the other speakers, W. C. Vereen, Moultrie banker and manufacturer, W. L. B. Barker, head of several large industrial enterprises, and F. R. Piddock, railroad executive, that the country is on the way out of the depression and that this should be one of the best years Moultrie has ever seen. Figures read by W. C. Vereen showed that cotton, peanuts and hogs are bringing more than 100 cents more than a year ago. He also stated both the city and county governments had greatly reduced their indebtedness during the past three years.

The Chamber of Commerce here has a full-time secretary for 22 years, Colonel Smith A. Harris, retired army officer, is now serving in that capacity.

The new executive committee follows: W. C. Vereen, Harry Hall, O. W. Kincaid, R. B. Wright, W. L. Vereen, G. W. Piddock, M. W. Majors, J. B. Shepherd, Waldo Deloche, Grady Adams, A. W. ## WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks black, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, pills, laxatives or cathartics and expect them to make you suddenly alert and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do this. Only more bowels and a more movement down get at the cause of your discomfort. You're feeling ill because your liver and bowels are sluggish. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food isn't digested. It just decays in the bowels and you feel down and out. Your head aches and you feel tired and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, sugar-regulating, stomachic, laxative and cathartic ingredients. When it comes to making the bile flow freely, nothing else does it.

Surgeons Divided on Qualification Of Major Ocker To Handle Plane

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 1.—(AP)—A conflict of opinion between two flight surgeons on whether they consider it safe to fly with the veteran pilot of the army air corps developed today in the court-martial of 58-year-old Major William C. Ocker, pioneer in blind flying.

Captain E. L. Berquist, medical officer at Kelly Field, testified he was willing to take to the air with Ocker, the oldest pilot in the army in point of service.

His superior, Major Clyde C. Johnston, senior flight surgeon and chief prosecution witness against Ocker on charges of making derogatory remarks concerning Lieutenant Colonel B. H. Clagett, commanding officer of Kelly Field, had told the military court he would not fly with Ocker unless he received a direct command.

Ocker is charged with having stated he was being discriminated against and that there was "collusion" between Lieutenant Colonel Clagett and Major Johnston concerning a physical examination that removed him from flying status on the grounds of defective vision following a plane crash more than a year ago.

Conviction on the charges, brought under the 92d article of war, could result in penalties ranging from a reprimand to life imprisonment.

Major Ocker was restored to flight duty after a physical examination by Captain Berquist and Captain H. E. Schneider last September 29, the day he is alleged to have made the remarks about Lieutenant Colonel Clagett to Major Johnston.

"Do you think it is safe for Major Ocker to fly?" Captain Berquist was asked by defense counsel.

"If I didn't I wouldn't have passed him," the witness replied.

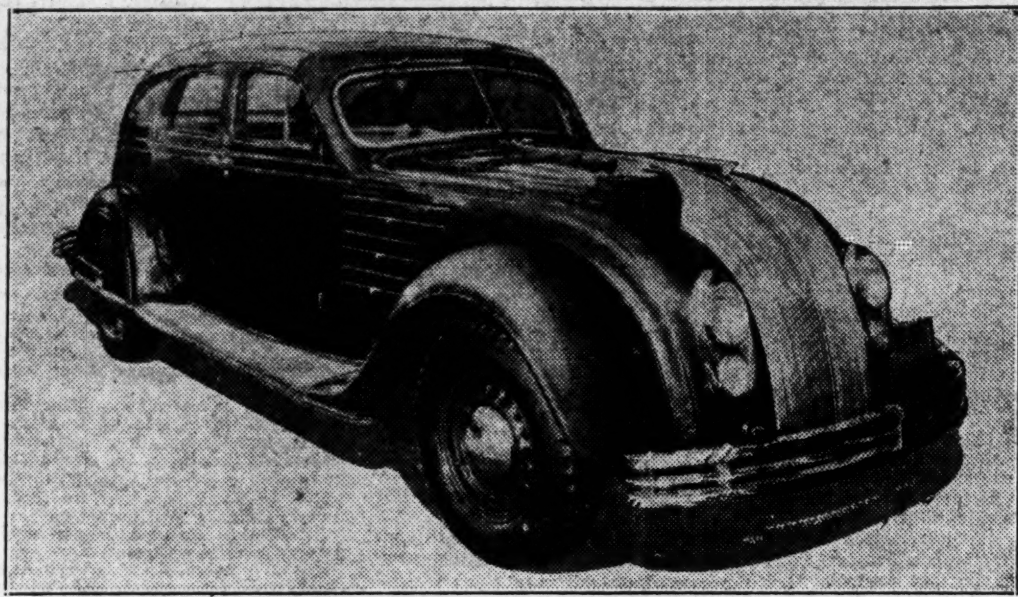

"It's your business to pass on pilots; then why don't you fly with Major Ocker?"

"I will: I never turned him down," Captain Berquist responded.

He said Ocker passed the physical examination with certain waivers pertaining to his vision granted by the adjutant general of the air corps.

Major Johnston had testified he is still of the opinion Ocker is not qualified physically or psychologically to pilot planes. He said, however, he had approved the findings of Captains Berquist and Schneider.

President Roosevelt today vetoed his first bill—a measure providing honorable discharge benefits for Beryl M. McHam, who served in Company C, 20th regiment, and Company O, Eighth regiment, United States infantry, in the World War.

The official report on the case said he was cited for bravery in action, but while with the army of occupation in Germany after the war he became involved in a fist fight after

STATE AID SOUGHT IN CRIME WAVE

The criminals, Barrett asked for $7,500 for the employment of 50 additional men for a limited time in an effort to augment the department sufficiently to put an end to the series of bandit raids.

Alderman Barrett's ultimatum to the committee followed a plea by Charles Barrett, president of the Men of Justice, for the committee to authorize the holding of a mass meeting at the city auditorium on March 11 for the purpose of deputizing between 1,000 and 2,000 men to serve as a vigilante corps in tracking down the bandits.

Alderman Frank Reynolds, urging that 100 more men be added to the police force to cope with the situation, pointed out that "there are many men who need the work, and they will be glad to give Atlanta adequate protection."

In asking for official approval of the mass meeting sponsored by the Men of Justice, Charles Barrett said that "bandits are infesting our city and our streets are not safe. It is wrong for citizens to arm themselves promiscuously as has been advised, because that gives the criminals an excuse to be carrying guns. There are 13 deputy sheriffs in our organization who could be impressed into a drive such as the Men of Justice are seeking to launch."

Alderman Barrett, stating that "something has got to be done," said that "I have learned from a confidential source that people are considering a request to the governor to call out the militia unless something is done."

Police Laxity Charged.

In another speech, Barrett, of the Men of Justice, said that "the trouble is that the policemen are not doing their duty. If our policemen cannot correct this situation, we should get men who can do it."

Councilman J. Raymond Curtis said that "the trouble is that the people are demanding economy and that we cut to the bone. We are between two fires, and cannot determine what ought to be done. An emergency exists, the policemen should be placed on extra duty to cope with the situation."

Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant replied that "the men have been placed on extra duty. There are just three men who are doing all this dirty work, and I'll be willing to bet two to one that they will all be locked up within one week."

Alderman Farris Mitchell added his voice to those who said that "something must be done."

Alderman L. G. Hailley charged that "the newspapers are not co-operating, because of premature publicity given to the police department's activities."

Councilman H. Turner Loehr said that "we have enough policemen now, and this situation could be cleared up if they would get on the job and quit hanging around filling stations and warming their feet at stoves."

Councilman Curtis, in taking another shot at the matter, said that "all of this discussion has not gotten us together. If the police committee and council will not back up the department, go ahead and put the city under martial law."

The letter to Mr. Arkwright was received about two months ago and was turned over to police immediately. It was said. The power officials were placed under a close guard, and detectives spent approximately 20 days of extra time in investigating the threats.

Existence of the threatening letter was revealed when the police committee voted to allow Detective Lieutenant Lon Evans, Detectives Martin and Taylor and Patrolmen Jones and Cody to receive from the power company compensation for the extra time they spent on the case.

The offer of the compensation was made in a letter from Frank Shumate, a vice president of the power company, which was transmitted to the committee by Chief Sturdivant. Shumate's letter praised the work of the officers, and said that they had contributed a great deal of extra effort and time to the investigation.

Prominent ministers and business and professional men are behind the movement for a giant mass meeting at the auditorium to consider the deputizing of enough men to put down the crime wave in which more than 30 persons have been abducted and robbed in the last 18 days, it was said.

Under plans of the Men of Justice the special officers would be trained by retired army officers and would augment the police force, which it was pointed out, has caught only one gang of the "ride" bandits without stopping the epidemic.

Four Suspects Arrested.

Four persons were arrested on "suspicion" Thursday by city detectives but none has been connected with the abduction robberies.

Those held at the police station are Arthur Hunkerop, of 443 Oakland avenue, being questioned in connection with a purse snatching; George Lewis, 26-year-old negro, of the rear of 318 Decatur street, and John Fanning, 28, of 103 Glimmer street, whom detectives are holding for questioning concerning stolen goods; and George Willis, negro, of 103 1-2 Decatur street, who was arrested by detectives.

H. H. Hubbard, 32, of 552 Howell street, S. W., late Thursday afternoon was held up by a lone white bandit while walking under the Central avenue viaduct, and was robbed of $1.25 in cash, his overcoat and his shoes.

Hubbard said that he borrowed a pair of shoes to walk to the police station and report the robbery.

Daring Daylight Holdup.

Bandits perpetrated a daring daylight holdup Thursday morning, robbing E. R. Wilson, of 352 Jonesboro road, of $14.50 on McDonough road. Wilson told police three white men in an automobile asked him to ride with them and when he refused, they pulled pistols and ordered him to give them his money. They escaped in their car.

While 30 persons have been victimized by the daring bandits in the last 18 days, five others escaped. Berry Cobb, bicycle dealer, and a party almost were victims of robbers on the Jonesboro road last week but succeeding in foiling the robbers and suspecting the police with information which led to the arrest of three persons, two of whom were later identified by another victim as the bandits who robbed him.

Situation Turned Appalling.

"It is appalling that in a civilized community, citizens are snatched from their machines, carted to remote sections of the county, robbed and subjected to such humiliations," Wiley L. Moore, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, said.

"Organized crime is rampant. It flouts society and preys on it in the heart of the city. I wish to urge every officer of the law and every enforcement arm to be especially vigilant at this time of emergency. The wave of banditry which has descended on Atlanta is unheard of in the history of Georgia. The methods employed make its detection especially difficult. I believe the police are doing everything possible to protect the properties of the citizens, and am merely urging them to leave no facility at their disposition untried."

"Law-abiding citizens are timid about leaving their homes, even in broad daylight. The situation has reached an alarming stage. It calls for the complete co-operation of all citizens, the law and all those who believe in civilization."

Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company, said:

"We in the Georgia Power Company had a striking demonstration of the seriousness of the crime situation today when a holdup occurred just outside the company building in Fairlie street almost at midday. Many of our employees were going to lunch at the time and any one of them might have been the victim. When holdups can occur in broad daylight on busy streets, in addition to the large number of banditries at night, the time has come for action."

"My opinion is that Atlanta's crime wave is the result of the extremely cold weather in the north during the past month, which has driven a horde of criminals south. It is an extraordinary situation that calls for extraordinary measures. I believe that extra police should be sworn in to assist the regular force, just as many of them are needed to round up the criminals and restore order."

Other Atlantans also raised a cry for citizens to confer with police and the police committee on an effort to end the careers of robbers.

"I never go out alone any more," one prominent young Atlanta woman said, and another added that "It is getting to be everybody for himself" in seeking protection.

"Strong arm squads of police should be assigned constantly to check questionable hotels, rooming houses, poolrooms and 'joints,'" a man said.

"A citizens' mass meeting will develop something that will be of aid to the police in combating crime," declared a second man.

Another suggested that all outlying traffic lights should be abolished at night, for motorists required to stop for them are exposed to banditry. He also advocated a meeting between a citizens' committee and police officials.

A woman said, "It has reached the point where I stay in every night for fear of being abducted. It is time for immediate and drastic action."

"I wish that the city's social, civic and business leaders would meet with the police and attempt to formulate some plan to make the streets safe from robbers" was the appeal of one young woman.

"Carefully selected volunteer citizens should be armed to aid the police in their drive against these vicious bandits who infest our city," was the way a businessman summed up his cure for the crime wave.

Dr. Hugh N. Fuller, Emory University and criminologist, said crime always followed unstable economic conditions and that if the new deal is successful in settling the economic order, crime will lessen to a large extent.

An out-of-town visitor, cognizant with the situation in Atlanta, said he did not believe that the chief of police should advise everybody to "carry guns and to shoot to kill" because that is the duty of the policeman, "what they're paid for."

Increase in Firearms Sale.

There has been a decided increase in the sale of firearms, hardware stores reported, as citizens prepared to defend themselves from the bandits. In the last 10 days a large number of pistols and many 12-inch barreled shotguns have been sold, some of them to persons who never before considered it necessary to go about the streets of Atlanta armed to the teeth.

AIR EXPANSION BILL
OPPOSED BY DERN

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—Secretary Dern snatched a "beyond any sane estimate" label today across congressional plans for a wide expansion of army aviation.

The war department and its one-time traditional ally, the house military affairs committee, however, broke off friendly relations. The committee promptly prepared a comeback of its own.

Dern singled out for attack two bills introduced by Chairman McNair, one of which would give the army 4,384 new planes. In a statement to the committee he termed them "one-sided," "partisan," and "even prompted by self-interest."

"The first of these two bills," he said, "would provide an air force so far beyond any sane estimate of our defensive needs, and so costly, that its passage could be construed by the world only an evidence either of ardent militarism or immature war."

McNair forthwith invited the war secretary to come up and tell his committee about it. He added:

"The committee has several times requested Secretary Dern to appear before it and explain his attitude, but he has never come. We are still ready to have him appear at his convenience."

25 HOME LOAN
EMPLOYEES FIRED

West Says Few Have
Been Replaced in Reorganization of Office.

George West, special representative of the board of directors of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, Thursday confirmed reports that 25 employees of the Atlanta offices have been dismissed during reorganization of the offices here in the last six weeks.

"In the general reorganization of the offices we have had to dismiss a number of employees, but all of them were let go because they were not qualified or suitable for the work we have here," Mr. West said.

The special representative was appointed by the corporation's board about January 15, the appointment apparently being made without the knowledge of Senators Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell Jr., or members of the Georgia delegation in the house. It is understood that a number of the employees dismissed have written to Washington, charging that their dismissal was laid to politics.

"We have replaced only a few of the people dismissed," Mr. West said. "Most of those let go, we have not found it necessary to replace, but those we have replaced have been replaced by people qualified and suited to the work in our offices."

A list of those dismissed was available. Commenting on reports that the employees of the office retained were apprehensive over their jobs, Mr. West said "we will be able to replace them as they are needed."

The HOLC has refinanced 1,098 homes in Georgia so far. These have been financed despite a late start. Mr. West said that the office is now closing from 30 to 40 loans a day.

"The record made in the last six weeks shows that the revised plan of force has handled more loans than it did previously," Mr. West said. "I do not say that I have done it. I say it has been done."

Frank Holden, state manager of the HOLC, still is on the job, despite Mr. West's appointment.

ROOSEVELTIAN ERA
LOOMS IN FRANCE

PARIS, March 1.—(UP)—A "Rooseveltian era" in French politics, with Premier Gaston Doumergue wielding dictatorial powers, was inaugurated today in an effort to balance the budget and restore confidence.

The elderly statesman rode roughshod over both houses of parliament to gain the right to rule the nation's finances by decree. He proposes to cut government expenditures sharply to eliminate an anticipated deficit of 600,000,000 francs ($30,000,000).

The United Press understood the Doumergue economy program would start with slashes in salaries, veterans' benefits and social insurance, within two weeks. The premier recognizes these drastic steps, will be bitterly unpopular, but considers them essential to a sound economic policy.

Premier Doumergue, his victory in his pocket, planned to send parliament on vacation as soon as he can do so gracefully so that he may wield his great powers in an atmosphere freed of political turmoil.

A further Rooseveltian analogy was seen in reports that a code for French heavy industries, including steel producers, is being contemplated by the industrialists themselves, with government collaboration. Whether this may lead to a French NRA series of codes remained conjectural.

A new era of trade relations between the United States and France, including perhaps a settlement of the troublesome war debt problem, was envisioned by French economists.

Authority given Premier Gaston Doumergue to change the French tariff structure was called the initial step in eliminating economic barriers to a healthy world trade.

SAN FRANCISCO ENJOYS
MUNICIPAL PROSPERITY

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.—(AP)—Through a period of economic stress San Francisco has achieved municipal prosperity.

City officials said today that a deficit of $773,737 has been replaced by a surplus of $1,195,426.

The municipal street car system, though faced with competition, has maintained its carfare at 5 cents, and is making a profit.

Operating profit of nearly $2,000,000 annually is shown by the city power plant.

The municipal water system has contributed profits to the city treasury, with lower rates in prospect.

All bond obligations have been met on time, taxes have been reduced, 13,000 city employees never have missed a pay day and for four years, until recently, unaided, the city has carried on unemployment relief.

In a summary of the city's status Mayor Angelo Rossi and Controller Leonard Leary credited municipal ownership and a business-like charter with making this possible.

Many departments are controlled by a "chief administrative officer" appointed by the mayor, while others are directly controlled by the executive through appointive commissions. Spending of money, unless it is in the treasury, is prohibited.

"Since the fiscal year of 1931-32 the city rate has been reduced from $4.04 on each $100 of assessed value to $3.48 this year," Controller Leary reported. "This was done in spite of a reduction in the assessment rolls from $1,203,343,830 to $974,440,722. The city's operating budget was reduced $7,632,946 to $3,826,472."

Longfellow's Daughter, 'Laughing Allegra,' Dies
CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Annie Longfellow Thorp, the "Laughing Allegra" of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's poem, "The Children's Hour," is dead. She was the youngest of the poet's children and was 79 years old. Years ago her father immortalized her in the lines:

"From my study I see in the lamp-light
Descending the broad hall stair,
Grave Alice, and laughing Allegra,
And Edith with golden hair."

Annie Allegra Longfellow married Joseph Gilbert Thorp in 1885. She died yesterday at the family home and was 79 years old. She had five daughters and a number of grandchildren survive.

"We expect within the next 60 days," stated Mr. Muse, "to bring the number of Volunteer units in Atlanta to more than one hundred."

The Volunteer units are sponsored in the house. It is understood that a number of the employees dismissed have written to Washington, charging that their dismissal was laid to politics.

Kang Teh, Once Pu Yi, Plans
Constructive Era for Realm

HSINKING (CHANGCHUN), Manchukuo, March 1.—(AP)—Under the sign of 50,000 soldiers, the "radiance of the sun, moon and stars," and the boyish emperor, Kang Teh, the new "great Manchukuo" began today an era of construction.

"I proclaim this the first year of kangte, the era of construction," announced the 28-year-old Henry Pu-yi as he ceremoniously ascended Manchukuo's orchid throne.

"In co-operation with our great neighbor, Japan, our course will remain as unaltered as the sun in heaven."

"Today the country is bathed in the radiance of the sun, moon and stars. Henceforth, let all be virtuous. The establishment of the monarchy affected the salvation of our peoples from the agencies and sufferings of water and fire."

Ceremonies this morning elevating the former boy emperor of China had the stiffness of Japanese military precision, the safety of soldiers and detectives, the color of ancient robes and flags, the austerity of 3,000-year-old traditions.

And in keeping with the rites, Kang Teh declared his rule would be simple, safe, tranquil, and virtuous.

His words were echoed—for the benefit of foreign countries—by the foreign minister: "By paying reverence to heavenly commands we eased the hearts of the people; let all rejoice in universal peace; strife has nation in former Chinese territory by the Japanese.

Japan, under a protocol published today and signed September 15, 1932, undertakes to defend Manchukuo.

Kang Teh indicated the immediate future of the young state when he pointed out the start that already has been made—the building of highways, the establishment of railroads and bus lines, organization of an independent army, navy and police force, and the stabilization of currency.

He granted amnesty to prisoners and declared banditry and graft would be eliminated.

It took just four hours to change Henry Pu-yi, the chief executive, into Kang Teh, the emperor, and his name Manchukuo "To Manchukuo" the "Great Manchukuo Empire."

So unobtrusively did two others play their parts that the foreigners present named them and the emperor the most picturesque of the resplendent garbed assembly.

One was the wife of Empress Elizabeth—Yueh Hua. She remained in the palace during the religious rites but dramatically and unexpectedly appeared at the second ceremony.

Pale and fragile amid the mild sensation caused by her coming, she appeared to receive a group of Manchukuo and Mongolian hearing staffs.

The other was the scholarly premier, Cheng Hsiao-nai, once Pu-yi's Manchukuo and walked shakily to the palace while Japanese officials, sumptuously clothed, rode in expensive American limousines, throughout he was in the background.

Snow Blindness Called "Sunburn" of the Eyes

BALTIMORE, March 1.—(AP)—Snow blindness, a common affliction these wintry days, is really a case of sunburn on the eyes, specialists at Johns Hopkins said today.

Ultra-violet rays, reflected from the snow, burn the eyes. Snow blindness is more severe than water burns, caused by sunlight reflected from water. Both of these burns are burns caused as worse than direct-ray sunburn.

Snow blindness, which may be suffered even in hazy weather, is usually only a temporary affliction. The best precaution against it is a pair of glasses with colored lenses.

had been on the trail of Mrs. Miller for several weeks, asserted they had in their possession a number of letters written by Mrs. Miller, or Helms as she was known in Atlanta and Deatur, demanding money on threat of kidnapping children.

Among those who received such notes are Mrs. Bernard Stodgill, wife of the well-known automobile official; Dr. L. H. Brown, proprietor of Brown's Pharmacy, and R. B. Pullen, Atlanta attorney.

The letters directed the receivers to give $2,000 in cash to Mrs. Lora C. Davis, police matron, who stated that Mrs. Miller "had it in for her," and was taking this method of revenge.

Arrested Wednesday night in Clearwater by Postal Inspector Tom Jerry, of Atlanta, Mrs. Miller will be taken to Tampa and held for extradition papers. She is charged with violation of the "Lindbergh act," which made it a federal offense to send extortion letters through the mail containing threat of kidnapping.

Police Matron Davis said she had arrested Mrs. Miller on one occasion for being cruel to an old woman she was employed to serve, and that she had directed police in breaking up a baby-nursing home which Mrs. Miller operated here some time ago.

There will be a meeting of the friends of ED. L. ALMAND, candidate for County Commissioner, at 7:30 o'clock P. M., FRIDAY, MARCH 2, at the ANSLEY HOTEL ROOF.

U. S. CHILD LABOR BAN BLOCKED IN KENTUCKY

By the Associated Press.

The child labor amendment yesterday was effectively blocked by the rules committee of the Kentucky senate, while Virginia's house of delegates passed the $82,000,000 biennial budget bill.

The Kentucky upper house's rules committee voted unanimously not to report a resolution calling for the ratification of the constitutional amendment. This ended any attempt to pass the amendment in the 1934 legislature, since the general assembly's rules committee has complete control of legislation during the last 15 days of a session. A senate committee reported favorably a bill to appropriate $250,000 for the Mammoth Cave National park project.

Efforts to amend the Virginia budget in the house of delegates resulted only in the addition of $125,000 to replace a condemned dormitory at the School for the Deaf and Blind at Staunton. The senate proceeded slowly in its attempt to clear its calendar.

South Carolina's general assembly busied itself yesterday with tax extension, auto tags and mortgage relief legislation. The senate undertook revision of the $6,754,000 annual appropriations. Senators debated a bill to ban mortgage foreclosures except in extreme cases where mediation was impossible.

The Carolina house passed and sent to the senate a joint resolution extending property tax payment to May 1 with a 2 per cent penalty. Unless the senate approves the resolution, the penalty will be 7 per cent this week and the taxes will go into execution March 15.

HEBREW EDUCATION IMPORTANCE STRESSED

I. J. Paradise, prominent Atlanta businessman and general chairman of the 44th annual Purim ball which will be given Tuesday night at the Shrine mosque under auspices of the United Hebrew school, Thursday emphasized the importance of properly maintaining a center of Hebrew education in Atlanta as an integral part of community life and as an "expression of devotion to our faith."

"Hebrew education is one of the strongest forces we can use in combating anti-Semitism," Mr. Paradise said. "It is a potent influence in the upbuilding of character and citizenship."

The United Hebrew school was established in 1861. It is operated in the afternoons at the Abavath Achim synagogue, and is open to any Jewish boy or girl in the city. Approximately 125 children are enrolled.

MAIL PROBE BARES ADDITIONAL NAMES

Sons of Fess, Kahn, Philp
Involved in Dickering, Hanshue Reveals.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—Lehr Fess, Julius Kahn and "Young" Philp today were added to the list of sons of families well known in Washington officialdom who had part in the dickering of air line companies for contracts to carry the mails.

Harris M. Hanshue, president of Western Air Express, told a senate committee that Fess and Philp represented National Air Transport at an air operators' conference and that Kahn had done political work in Washington for Western Air.

Fess is a son of the senator from Ohio; Philp a son of a former fourth assistant postmaster-general, and Kahn a son of Representative Florence P. Kahn, of California.

The hearing already had brought out the dealings of Ernest W. Smoot, son of the former senator from Utah, with government departments for air line and other concerns.

Hanshue said Kahn did traffic work in San Francisco for Western Air and was in Washington a relatively short time doing political work.

More testimony went into the record today about young Smoot. Hanshue said Smoot had sold the company the idea that he could expedite a decision from Comptroller General McCarl which would release government permits to the company.

Hanshue said Smoot told him his father, the former Utah senator, would write a letter to McCarl.

"You knew the chief object of his employment was to get a favorable decision from the comptroller general?" Chairman Black asked.

Hanshue replied, "I don't think anybody could do much with the comptroller general."

The air line official said he had been forced to make an unfavorable contract with American Airways.

"Why did you make such a contract?" asked Black.

"We had to do it to get the mail," Hanshue replied. "Had you been told you had to agree with them to get the mail contract?"

"Yes."

"Who told you that?"

"Postmaster-General Brown," Hanshue said the agreement with American Airways forbade his company from seeking extensions that would be competitive.

The postmaster-general approved this contract," asked Black.

"That is what I understand."

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

She'd never seen him like that before. It was a situation she had no idea how to meet. Doug drove as though he were going to a fire, still racing against the fear that something might cause him to weaken in his determination to finish with Yanner. Every minute made the job a more difficult one.

Suddenly he stopped the car with a crunching of brakes. Yanner sat back and tried to smile. But the smile died on her lips. For a second Doug sat looking straight ahead, and when he spoke she scarcely recognized the cold, firm voice.

"Yanner," he began with an obvious effort, "I guess you've been suspecting for quite a while this was coming."

"What was coming?" She tried desperately to sound innocent and bright. Then Doug turned and looked at her squarely, his face almost as white as hers. "I'm—I'm sorry if this will hurt you. But I can't see you any more. This is the end."

Yanner was certain for a second she was going to scream out a protest. But all her training cried out against it. She knew very well the mistake a woman made in trying to hit a man when his love was dead. She clenched her hands and swallowed against the lump that threatened to come into her throat and choke her. "And—well, I guess that's that! But you're going to explain to me, aren't you? If it's anything I've done, I'm sorry."

He shook his head and turned to stare ahead of him. "No—I guess it's nothing you've done. I—I've changed, that's all."

Yanner shrugged, her heart a lump of lead in her breast. "Is there some one else—you've met?"

"Yes."

"Some one—I know?"

Doug nodded. Yanner could not let him go until she found out who had supplanted her in Doug's affections. She put a timid hand on his arm. "You—you will tell me who it is—darling?"

She shivered when he took her hand from his arm—dropped it to light a cigarette. For she knew then nothing in the world would ever bring Doug back to her. He looked off into the distance for what seemed like minutes to Yanner.

"Don't know who it is?" "I—I've no idea, Doug."

He turned to face her squarely again, his brown eyes burning earnestly in his tanned young face. "I love my wife. It's Charity. I thought you would guess."

He was not prepared for the sudden crumpling of the girl beside him. She sank back in her seat and stared at him in disbelief.

"You—you can't love that woman?" "You can't love her, I've never loved anyone else."

"It's the money—Yanner said coldly, anger pouring through her until it dwarfed all her senses. "You love her money?"

"Don't be a fool," Doug almost laughed at her. "I've more money now than I'll ever be able to spend."

"You can't love her—for herself," Yanner shook her head dazedly. "She—she's hypnotized you."

Then Doug did laugh—and Yanner shivered again. "Charity hasn't looked at me since the night she met us at the Casino Roof. But she doesn't know I exist. But I love her—and I'll spend my life trying to win her love and respect."

Yanner's lip curled. "You're going to have a little difficulty getting her away from her boy friend after all this time. I'm afraid, strike her. But he said coolly, "I suppose you mean Bitch. They are good friends—both that's all. Their friendship is something a girl like you wouldn't be able to understand."

"A girl like me?" Yanner choked, her eyes widening with fury.

"I don't mean to be insulting," Doug shrugged. "But you'll have to be more careful what you say about my wife."

"So sorry," Yanner smiled sarcastically. "I wouldn't insult your father's secretary for the world."

She thought for a moment Doug was going to strike her. He raised his hand, then dropped it to his side, not matter what a woman of your type says or thinks about a girl like Charity. I might have known you couldn't take this on the chin and be a lady."

All Yanner's reserve broke down. Doug folded his arms and sat indifferently when she started to cry. It came at all how Yanner felt. She whimpered for a moment, then wiped her eyes, furious that she had been cleverly. In a little while she straightened up, determined to undo a little of the harm she had done.

She dropped her head then, to say meekly, "Doug—I'm—I'm terribly sorry. You must forgive me. The woman scorned—you know. It's not so easy to take."

When he answered, a little more kindness had come into his voice. "If you think it's easy for me, Yanner, you're very much mistaken."

"I—I know," she said in her meek little voice. "I—I do love you, you know."

"I'm sorry," he said kindly. "But you'll get over it. Some of these days you'll meet some one you really love."

"No," she shook her head sadly. "There'll never be anyone else. I—I couldn't."

"That's silly," he said shortly. "No one knows better than I how sure you can be you love some one—and then meet some one else and learn what love really is."

Yanner felt stabbed to the quick, but she tried to smile. "You—you really did think you loved me, Doug. You—weren't just playing?"

He faced her again. "You don't think I could be that much of a cad?"

"No," she said then. "I—I'm sure you thought you loved me. What am I going to tell the family? That's the rub."

"Tell them the truth. Or—tell them you threw me over. I'll put on the sad act if that'll help you any."

"No—thanks. I'll get out of it somehow. But—but you don't know my family."

"I'm very sorry to put you in this position, Yanner. You must believe me. If there's anything I can do—"

She wanted to tell him he could give her half a million dollars or so to pay a few of the Vandergriff debts. That would fix everything up with the family. But of course that wouldn't do that. She could sue him for breach of promise through the lawyer, Charity up—and teach him a lesson, too. But debutantes of her standing didn't do that. She'd have to be a lady if it killed her. Any other course would ruin her chances of marrying a man with as much money as it was necessary for her to marry.

They sat silently for awhile. Yanner had recovered from her outburst as they sat in silence at the Vandergriff's private airport. Finally Doug said, uncomfortably, "Well, I'm sorry, Yanner, but I'll get out of getting back to town. Shall I run you to the house?"

She shook her head, and her eyes dimmed again. "No—no, I'll go for a short flight."

A sudden fear seized Doug. He did not think it was a good idea for Yanner to go up in the air in her frame of mind.

She seemed to read his thoughts and shook her head. "Don't worry—I wouldn't take that way out."

"Don't be foolish," he denied that he'd been thinking such thoughts. "I—I just thought you needed a wrap. It's cool."

"I'll be all right," she smiled crookedly. "Thanks—"

Doug held out his hand. "I'm sorry it's going to be so tough to tell your family. Do—we part friends, Yanner?"

She winced, but slipped her hand into his. "Good luck."

Doug felt like a man let out of a life term in jail when he raced his car down the Vandergriff driveway. It was over. He had finished with Yanner. Tomorrow he would see Simmons and have a talk with his father's old attorney about his future. Then he would go to Chicago.

But Yanner, circling over Long Island sound with the cold breeze from the ocean blowing against her hot flushed cheeks, had other plans. She clenched her hands on the stick and the desire for revenge tore through her like a knife. She cried through teeth that chattered, "I'll never let her have him—never!"

Simmons was more than a little curious to know what Doug wanted to see him about when he called the next day. When the young man invited him to lunch at his club he was a bit flabbergasted. And it worried him no less about it. In fact, he decided he'd leave it entirely up to her. If Mrs. Temple desired to carry out Doug's father's wishes to the letter, he'd make no objection. He would keep Doug from getting away with a divorce.

On the contrary, if she was unhappy tied to a man who didn't love her, and wanted to be free to seek her own happiness, he'd see she was freed. When he had settled in his own mind, he felt better. And when he parked his car in front of Doug's club he felt resigned to anything.

Doug, sitting on the edge of a chair, bounded toward Simmons when he came in through the swinging door. "What's the news, Mr. S?"

Doug would crack with the eager shake the young man gave him. The mystery increased when Doug piloted him hurriedly through the lobby and into the dining room without giving him a chance to exchange greetings.

"Well, of you to take time off to have a snack with me," Doug said, leading him to a table in the corner. "I was afraid you'd have something too important on."

"Nothing that important," The lawyer sat back expansively. "What's on your mind, Doug?"

"Everything," Doug grinned and took up a menu. "You'd better order first, or I'm afraid the check will strike you dumb."

"Well," Simmons said mildly, "I'll try to stand up under it."

When they had ordered Doug waved the waiter away impatiently. His young face took on a look of eager earnestness and the lawyer watched him silently. Obviously he was having difficulty in finding words. But suddenly Doug threw down his napkin and plunged.

Reviewing the Shows

"Bolero" at Fox Today Is Super-Attraction

With "Bolero" the feature that opens at the Fox theater today, that theater again presents a super-attraction. Once again the management fulfills its promise to Atlanta that only the most important and entertaining screen productions will be seen at Atlanta's most important and biggest theater.

"Bolero" strikes a new note in screen entertainment and fully lives up to its description of "super-production." It is the kind of film that will thrill and delight every audience and which will be talked about for weeks to come.

George Raft, Carole Lombard and Frances Drake are listed at the top of the cast with Sally Rand, the sensational fan dancer, playing a role of no small importance in the story and one that permits her to perform her famous fan dance under striking and alluring circumstances.

Constance Bennett Star in Grand Comedy

Fascinating music, lively comedy and a great cast headed by Constance Bennett (in a double role), Franchot Tone, Tullio Carminati, and Helen Westley are presented in "Moulin Rouge," which starts today at Loew's Grand theater. This is the first of several Twentieth Century pictures in which Constance Bennett will star. "Moulin Rouge" is a story of stage life. Franchot Tone is seen as a young playwright who is involved with the presentation of a costly revue. He is happily married to a former actress (Miss Bennett), who finds that even marital happiness cannot take the place of the footlights and applause. Miss Bennett realizes that having an influential husband is not always an advantage in launching a stage career. Therefore she leaves home, disguises herself as a notorious Parisian music hall star, and reappears in this fashion to try her chances. Her disguise is so complete that even her husband does not recognize her.

This situation provides ample opportunities for comedy and romance, and the situations are further enlivened by several winning songs, including "The Boulevard of Broken Dreams" and "Coffee in the Morning."

Wheeler and Woolsey Picture at Paramount

Starting from an intriguing no-where and ending up in a highly interesting someplace, "Hips, Hips, Hooryay," playing at the Paramount theater today, starring Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, is a picture of the most interesting kind. It is a picture of the most interesting kind. It is a picture of the most interesting kind.

The picture takes its title from the big dance hit that Raft and Lombard create, the "Bolero." The dance is equally great with the picture. Raft is brilliant in his role, while Lombard makes as beautiful and fascinating a woman as ever walked across a screen. And Sally Rand's dance—! Jimmy Beers is back at the Fox organ and there are as usual a clever group of short screen subjects to complete the program.

Sensational "Carmen" Booked for Atlanta

The most talked-of performer in burlesque today, "Carmen," is coming to the Atlanta theater next week. This announcement was made by the management today. Carmen is a dancer whose spectacular productions have made her famous not only in America, but all over Europe. She has just returned from the other side of the Atlantic, coming to Atlanta direct, except for one week's engagement with a leading New York theater, where she will give much punch to the performance.

There are two performances daily at the Atlanta, 2:30 and 8:30 o'clock, with reserved seats available at all times at the box office.

Dixie Dunbar Appears On Fox Stage Tonight

Dixie Dunbar, who, as Tootsie Dunbar, used to be one of the most popular dancers and juvenile entertainers to Atlanta, is going to make a personal appearance on the stage at the Fox theater tonight at 9 o'clock. She is only able to appear the one time, because she leaves for New York later in the night.

Dixie, you may know, is fast climbing to fame on stage and screen. Her rush to New York is to fill an engagement with George White's "Scandals," while on the screen she plays a prominent role in the picture version of the same world-famous "Scandals," just completed at Hollywood.

The picture, by the way, is booked for the Fox theater the week of March 23 and all of us are going to see then, just how good our own Tootsie—pardon, Dixie—really is.

Berlin Declares War On Anti-Nazi Pastors

BERLIN, March 1.—(AP)—A new campaign against anti-Nazi Christian pastors was on in Germany today. Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller announced last night he would oust insurgent Protestant pastors from "elementary force" and would substitute Nazi lay preachers if necessary.

At Hanover, a minority group of those protesting against what they term Mueller's assumption of dictatorial power, left the Nazi Christian group of the provincial synod after Bishop Marahrens had pleaded in vain with the assembly to permit them to come to debate.

"In moments like this," the bishop declared, "everyone should be permitted to stand up before the gospel and his Christian conscience and express what seems to be his duty and his inner need."

But the Rev. Mr. Hahn, vice president of the synod, retorted: "There is no place for the old kind of debating in Nazi Germany."

TIME IS EXTENDED IN BANKHEAD BILL

Committee Would Make Compulsory Control Operative for Two Years.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—Compulsory control of cotton production through taxing surplus marketings could be imposed for as high as three years if the Bankhead bill is enacted in the form it took today in new amendments by the house agricultural committee.

Originally drawn by Senator and Representative Bankhead, democratic brothers from Alabama, to apply for one year, it was changed to extend its provisions to two years, with permission for the president to continue it for another year through proclamation if he sees fit.

The increase to 10,000,000 bales in the allowable marketable production for one year from the nine and a half million bales originally provided, was recently decided upon by the committee, would apply to each of the two years and to the third if the added year were proclaimed.

The message, which has been undergoing lengthy revision, was reintroduced today by Representative Bankhead to take care of further changes. Chairman Jones, democrat, Texas, said the committee would consider the measure further tomorrow.

Among other amendments to the bill is one to authorize the secretary of agriculture to promulgate rules and regulations to protect share croppers. The farmers marketing cotton in excess of quotas would be fined 50 percent of the value of the excess sold.

Ten Filipinos Killed By Poisonous Fungi

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., March 1.—(AP)—A fungus dinner Monday night at Arroyo Grande, 16 miles south of here, had resulted today in the death of 10 Filipinos. Fourteen others, with two white men, their employers, were dangerously ill.

After recent heavy rains, mushrooms grew rapidly in the Arroyo Grande valley but the Filipino vegetable pickers and their employers, Jack and Walter Huber, ranchers, apparently did not know the difference between the deadly toadstool and the edible mushrooms.

Bass High Student Killed by Trolley

Stepping suddenly onto the tracks of the Stone Mountain carline between Rogers avenue and Thompson stop, David Reid, 15, of 1702 New York avenue, was instantly killed late Thursday afternoon when struck by an inbound Stone Mountain car operated by T. C. Nix, according to reports to the Georgia Power Company.

Reid was playing golf with two chums, Charles Murphy, 16, of 250 Cason, N. E., and Bishop George, 14, of 1800 DeKalb avenue, on the power company right-of-way as the trolley car approached, it was said.

Nix said that he saw the three and blew his whistle. As he approached to within 10 feet of the boys, Reid stepped onto the tracks and, although the emergency brake was thrown on, he was knocked down and run over by the front wheels of the car, it was said.

Reid, an orphan, is survived by a brother, Ralph T. Reid, and three sisters, Miss Iva Reid, Mrs. Herman Neal and Mrs. Willard Neal. He was a student at Bass Junior High school. Funeral arrangements were announced later by Brandon, Bond & Condon.

LINDBERGH KIDNAPER SEARCH STILL STRONG

By H. ALLEN SMITH.
NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—Two years ago tonight, some time between 8:30 and 10 o'clock, the infant son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh was snatched from his nursery crib at Hopewell, N. J., and there is ample evidence that the trail of his murderers is as hot now as it was two days after the abduction.

Pursuit of the Lindbergh kidnapers, who murdered their tiny captive as they fled from Soudland mountain, has been concentrated in the hands of the federal department of justice. Rumors, many of them with reasonable foundation, persist that the most important clues have never been made public.

The last act remains to be written in the greatest, most tragic crime drama of the century. When that last act is written, when the kidnapers are brought to heel, the story will stand as a classic in the annals of criminal daring and criminal cunning.

For two years the abductors of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. have eluded the most unflinching manhunt in the nation's history. But the federal men who now have charge persist in the declaration that a solution is inevitable, that a break might come at any time.

New clues of a sensational character, are in the hands of authorities, according to Larry Ryan, who has spent weeks on a private investigation and whose conclusions have been published in the New York Daily News.

"As said before," he wrote today, "one of these involves a suicide as dramatic as that of Violet Sharpe. It involves the subpoenaing of the bank account of a highly respected and innocent citizen, the tapping of his telephone for months. It involves a car, possibly used by the kidnapers, discovered abandoned the day after the kidnapping. It brings handwriting experts definitely into the case."

"These clues point in one direction, to a certain locality, to certain individuals. They are positive clues, and the answers eventually will be found around them."

To retrace, at a distance of two years, the multifarious developments in the Lindbergh case would be to write a book, and a long book at that. The whole world remembers details of the actual abduction, the tumultuous days that intervened between March 1 and May 12, when the body was found within three miles of the Lindbergh estate.

The part played by Morris Rosner and by Salvatore Spitalo and Irving Bitz in their efforts to obtain an underworld contact with the kidnapers, and the much more important role of Dr. John E. "Jase" Condon, who tossed $50,000 over a Bronx cemetery fence to a man named "John," are separate chapters in the story.

Unmoved, Dr. Dean, the 36-year-old defendant, listened to these preliminaries attentively and then sat back in her chair to follow the arguments with the same calm she has shown almost throughout her five weeks in the courtroom. She wore a bright red rose on the lapel of her fur jacket.

NO REQUEST MADE FOR DEAN'S DEATH

Parents Present.
Directly behind her sat the aged parents of the dead surgeon, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Kennedy, his two dentist brothers, and his divorced wife, Mrs. Bessie Barry Kennedy, who testified that Dr. Dean "broke up her home."

Dr. Dean took the stand early this week to deny the poison charge, asserting she had loved Kennedy but had turned him down to marry Captain Franklin C. Maul, of Lewes, Del. If she had read yesterday's press dispatches from Philadelphia quoting Maul as saying they had never been engaged, she gave no sign of it today. Taking off her gloves for the first time in court, she disclosed a diamond sparkling on her engagement finger.

She smiled slightly when Johnston told the jury:

"We want to be fair about this case, but you have a right not to believe anything Dr. Dean said on the stand. Remember she has a more intense interest in this trial than anyone."

With three attorneys on each side to be heard and arguments limited under Mississippi law, it was problematical when the case would go to the jury.

Reiterating a statement issued at the start of the trial, Johnston said: "I have never demanded a death verdict of a jury and I won't now. There are some facts in this case which we believe warrant a verdict of death and I shall so inform the jury about this, but if you ask me directly if I am going to ask for the death penalty I would have to say no. That is a matter for the jury to decide."

Johnston read to the jury the instructions drawn by the state, asserting these provided two verdicts in favor of the state—guilty as charged, automatically carrying a death by hanging penalty, and guilty, which would carry a life sentence.

For the defense, Attorney Dick Denman told the jury its instructions provided for a verdict of acquittal "if any reasonable doubt exists in your minds that Kennedy met death in the exact manner charged by the state."

Burden on State.
"Remember the burden of proof rests with the state," he said. "The court will instruct the jury that the hanging declarations must be regarded with great caution and circumspection."

Kennedy's alleged dying statement that Dr. Dean poisoned him with a whisky highball at a "farewell" midnight tryst July 27, is the keystone of the state's case.

"Testimony that Ruth Dean was in love with Preston Kennedy and charged with disrupting the home life of the surgeon and his wife must not be accepted alone as evidence that she poisoned him," Denman's instructions concluded.

The instructions had the approval of Presiding Judge S. F. Davis, who ruled that "there is no element of manslaughter in this case."

PROSECUTION ASKS JURY TO TREAT HER AS MAN AND FORGET SEX.

GREENWOOD, Miss., March 1.—(AP)—Without specifically requesting the death penalty, in final arguments the state today asked the jury trying Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean on a murder charge for the alleged poison whisky highball death of Dr. John Preston Kennedy to "consider her case as you would a man's."

"You promised to try this case on the evidence presented and to bring in a verdict of guilty or not guilty regardless of the fact the defendant is a woman. The fact she is a woman is not shield for crime," Means Johnston, special prosecutor retained by the Kennedy family, told the jury in opening arguments.

During a court recess District Attorney Arthur Jordan, who will close the matter of punishment in event of conviction was "for the jury to decide."

Reiterating a statement issued at the start of the trial, Johnston said: "I have never demanded a death verdict of a jury and I won't now. There are some facts in this case which we believe warrant a verdict of death and I shall so inform the jury about this, but if you ask me directly if I am going to ask for the death penalty I would have to say no. ## 4 Killed, 4 Injured In Coal Mine Blast

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 1.—(AP)—A mine explosion 150 feet from the surface killed four men and injured four others, including a 14-year-old boy, at No. 2 shaft of the Logan Coal Company at Beavertown, late today.

Two of the victims, unidentified, were decapitated and another was hurled 150 feet from the point where he stood at the mine entrance.

The others killed in the explosion, caused by carbide which was being used to thaw out an airshaft, are: Andrew Fornadel, 45, and John Bearish, 47, both of Loydell.

Frank Corle, 14, who witnessed the blast, suffered burns of the hands and face. He raced three miles through the snow to spread the news and recruit aid. Then he collapsed and was taken to a Johnstown hospital.

Remember the burden of proof rests with the state," he said. "The court will instruct the jury that the hanging declarations must be regarded with great caution and circumspection."

"We want to be fair about this case, but you have a right not to believe anything Dr. Dean said on the stand. Remember she has a more intense interest in this trial than anyone."

With three attorneys on each side to be heard and arguments limited under Mississippi law, it was problematical when the case would go to the jury.

Reiterating a statement issued at the start of the trial, Johnston said: "I have never demanded a death verdict of a jury and I won't now. There are some facts in this case which we believe warrant a verdict of death and I shall so inform the jury about this, but if you ask me directly if I am going to ask for the death penalty I would have to say no. That is a matter for the jury to decide."

Johnston read to the jury the instructions drawn by the state, asserting these provided two verdicts in favor of the state—guilty as charged, automatically carrying a death by hanging penalty, and guilty, which would carry a life sentence.

For the defense, Attorney Dick Denman told the jury its instructions provided for a verdict of acquittal "if any reasonable doubt exists in your minds that Kennedy met death in the exact manner charged by the state."

Burden on State.
"Remember the burden of proof rests with the state," he said. "The court will instruct the jury that the hanging declarations must be regarded with great caution and circumspection."

Kennedy's alleged dying statement that Dr. Dean poisoned him with a whisky highball at a "farewell" midnight tryst July 27, is the keystone of the state's case.

"Testimony that Ruth Dean was in love with Preston Kennedy

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—Fluctuations in cotton were nervous and irregular within a range of 10 to 17 points today, but after selling off to 11.90 during the early trading, advanced to 12.03 late in the afternoon and closed at 11.99. The general market closed steady at a net

In the early trading the narrow market was sensitive to small orders either way and after the initial demand for near months had been supplied prices sagged. July eased off to 12.03 and October to 12.16, making net losses of about 6 to 8 points on the active positions. A little more trade demand brought the market

General business was restricted by a disposition to await the further developments in the Bankhead bill.

Very little southern selling was reported here during the day. Price fluctuations seemed to reflect the presence of trade buying orders on declines, while the advances met further liquidation.

reported some continental and scattered buying there encouraged by a better tone in Alexandria. The market for Egyptian cotton in Alexandria was 6 to 8 points for Aschmouni and 6 lower to 10 higher for Sakallarieties. The weather map attracted attention during the early trading and there were reports that recent weather

Householders with Liverpool connections were sellers here during the first hour, but the selling recently attributed to the far east appeared to have tapered off.

MADE IN NEW ORLEANS
NEW ORLEANS, March 1.—(P)—Cotton closed one point net higher today after showing weakness in early trading on uneasiness over the progress of the Bankhead bill. The market was only moderately active on both the decline and recovery.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE No. 155

Kitembo plucked the arrow from the earth and examined it. He would have been glad to have kept his discovery to himself, but the warrior at his side had seen, too. "It is the same," he said. "It is another of the arrows left behind at the camp."

Kitembo handed Zveri the arrow. "It is the same," he said to the Russian. "It is a warning to turn back." "An arrow sticking in the dirt cannot stop a column of armed men," said Zveri. "You are a coward, Kitembo. Your plans will fail," said Kitembo.

Shortly after noon the expedition halted for noon-day rest. They had been passing through a gloomy wood, and there was neither song nor laughter as the men squatted together while they devoured the cold food that constituted their midday meal.

Suddenly, from somewhere far above, a voice floated down to them. Weird and uncanny, it spoke to them in a Bantu dialect that most of them could understand. "Turn back, children of Mulungu," it cried. "Desert the white men before it is too late. Turn back!"

Prizes Offered Homemakers For Best Menus For Meals For a Day

Three Prizes To Be Awarded Each Week for Menus From Rogers Ad.

On this page appears the Rogers Quality Food Shops' week-end advertisements from which homemakers select their grocery purchases for the week.

In order that these buyers may obtain the choicest bargains, three prizes will be awarded to those housewives who arrange the best menus for three meals, breakfast, luncheon and dinner, from items in today's advertisement.

By best, is meant, best from a standpoint of economy, health and variety. Everyone is eligible except employees of Rogers and their families.

All menus must be addressed to Advertising Department, Rogers Quality Food Shops, and must be received on or before noon Wednesday, March 7.

First prize, for the best menu will be a Swift's Premium Ham. Second prize will be a Rogers prime rib roast, and third prize will be a 24-lb. bag of Rogers Best Flour.

Each week, until further notice, there will be a different contest and additional prizes will be offered weekly.

Choosing and Cooking Meats

BY L. M. CLOUGH.

Meat is the usual basis for the principal daily meal in American homes, and is the largest item of expense in the household market budget.

Its careful selection and preparation form a requisite of good living and good house-keeping.

About one-fourth of the edible portions of animals used as meat in this country are the so-called "choice cuts." The other three-fourths are the less expensive cuts, healthful, tasty, and for the Rogers Meat Buyer most part equal in food value to the choice cuts. Many of the less-known portions need special care in cooking. One who knows the cuts and the culinary methods will be able to enjoy a thoroughly healthful and appetizing meat ration at much less cost than one who takes only the very choice steaks or chops or tenderest roasts.

L. M. CLOUGH, is, and for the Rogers Meat Buyer most part equal in food value to the choice cuts. Many of the less-known portions need special care in cooking. ## Everything Is Relative.

A cannibal king caught his uncle and nephew and also some cousins. And tossed the whole lot in his cannibal pot.

With peppers and yams by the dozens.

And when they were cooked he poured the whole bunch through a sieve, and for his week's ration.

As you've managed to guess, he had a rare meal.

Of what you might call strained relations!

Grandma Tellen Says: "The woman who used to roast her husband a chicken, now has a daughter who roasts her husband about a chicken."
